A south side farmer, who recently made a trip covering much south side territory, says the corn in that section is a little better than half a stand, and while the acreage is large the crop, even with the best possible growing weather, will be away short of the normal production. Corn is doing well considering the lack of rain, but generally speaking is very backward.

No Kick Coming.

In these days when local business conditions, generally speaking, are not altogether satisfactory and more or less complaint is made, it is refreshing to come in contact with a man who says "I have no kick coming." Such a man is C. O. Weingand, who made that remark yesterday and supplemented it with the further statement that he was doing a highly satisfactory business. He ascribed this condition to the fact that when he re-engaged in the clothing business last spring he marked the price of goods lower than had been customary and these low prices are now further reduced by a general lowering on all lines, particularly on mens suits. This opportunity to purchase a suit usually sold at $27.50 for $15.00, a suit worth $20 for $13.50, and a $15.00 suit for $11.00 has naturally awakened an interest in suit buying, hence the satisfactory condition of trade at the Weingand store. Another favorable phase of this store is that all the goods are seasonable, there is no old stock—there can not be old stock in a store that has been in existence less than a year—and the man who makes a purchase knows he is getting the latest style and the newest fabrics.

In re-engaging in the clothing business Mr. Weingand established the rule of not carrying the seasonable goods of one year over until the next, and to carry out this policy his radical reduction in prices were made. The goods purchased for the summer trade of 1912 must go, and they are going, much to the profit of the purchasing public and to the satisfaction of Mr. Weingand—hence the truth of his remark "I have no kick coming."

Mr. Weingand would like you to visit his store look over his stock and note his prices. He believes he can convince you that the Weingand store is giving better values for the money than any other clothing store in this section of the state. If you question this, drop in and if you class yourself as "from Missouri" you will be "shown"—and that to your complete satisfaction.

A Word of Praise.

North Platte has two organizations that are certainly creditable to the city and of which the people should feel proud—we refer to the Philharmonic orchestra and the military band, both of which appeared at the opening sessions of the Chautauqua and gave concerts that pleased the people and won enthusiastic commendation. The orchestra with its sixteen members made its initial appearance at the afternoon session, and rendered a program covering a range of music that gave each member an opportunity to display his talent. The expression, the execution, the tone—all gave evidence of efficiency. We congratulate Director Garlisch in getting together such a high class of musicians, and the result he and they have attained.

In the evening the military band gave a concert program of six or eight numbers that eclipsed, in the opinion of this writer, any heretofore attempted by a local band. Perfect harmony and time marked each rendition, and the expression—so necessary in well rendered music—was in evidence at all times. On every hand was heard kind words, and every commendation was well deserved.

These organizations are worthy our financial support—let's see to it that the proper encouragement is given at times.

Mike Muldoon, of Kearney, was seriously injured Friday when he jumped from train No. 16 pulled by Engineer Austin. The young man jumped on the rear step of the tender intending to ride to his home near the chutes, where the engines usually stop for coal. This time the stop was not made, and though he was warned by Engineer Austin and his fireman not to jump, as the train was running twenty-five miles an hour, he heeded not the warning, and as his foot touched the ground he bounded like a rubber ball, striking his head on a tie. The train was stopped, the unconscious man taken back to the depot and later conveyed to the hospital, where he will be under a physician's care for some time.
