The growth of North Platte is best evidenced by building operations in its additions. Since the Trustee's Addition was laid out eighty-four residences have been erected; in the Taylor addition twenty-five have been built with several others under contract, and the Banks' addition has become a good-sized village of itself.

This being leap year she did not exceed a prerogative that some North Platte girls might follow and thus not only secure a husband but furnish a topic of conversation for social clubs and aid societies.

The stock of storage coal at this terminal is about thirty thousand tons, this having been stored prior to July 1, when business on the road was not so brisk as now.

For several weeks past the coal chutes have been abandoned, and engines are coaled direct from the cars by the use of the clam shovel. By this means the coal is handled more cheaply and fully as satisfactory.

John Phillips, a former engineer of this city, who has been employed for the R. G. Southern railroad in Colorado for several years, went thru Sunday enroute to Grand Island to visit. Enroute home he will spend a few days here with former friends.

Engineers on the No. 13 run find it impossible to make the scheduled stops and bring the train into this terminal on time. There has not yet been a morning, since the new time card has gone into effect, that the train has not been late when all stops were made. This train leads all others in its time over the district.

What would this cry mean to you if it should happen to be your property? Would it mean not considerable loss by only being partly protected by having insufficient insurance or by having insurance that you could not rely upon, or would you feel absolutely safe by having one of Temple's policies stored away in a safety deposit box. If the former, or worst still, if you have no insurance, see me at once or phone Red 500 and I will call on you.
