The fatal horse disease is spreading in Lincoln county, and has made its appearance in all sections. Up to yesterday Dr. Park, of this city, had learned of twenty-one cases, and of these but one had recovered, this exception being a colt owned by Fred Payne south of town. The disease seems to affect animals differently, same living for a week after the disease develops, others die within twenty-four to thirty hours. Some of the animals dying have been kept in the stable and fed grain and hay, so their contraction of the disease was not due to the condition of the pasture.

Among the losers is J. W. Payne who had a brood mare and two colts die.

A Dandy In Fiji.
The styles in Fiji may not concern us deeply, and of course we may not copy any of them except in a swimming tank. Still, they have styles. A returning traveler, interviewed in London, says the prevailing mode is two yards of blue jeans combined with a chintz pattern—this for the men. The real pacemakers among the women wear silk pinafores "in town" (meaning Suva), whereas in the country there is no silk and possibly no pinafore.

The beach is the promenade in the Polynesian islands, and there the traveler found the Fijian Berry Wall. He wore trousers and boots, a collar (but no shirt) and a top hat. Naturally, on account of the top, the observation was made late in the day.—Chicago Post.

A Good Eater.
When Gustavus of Sweden was besieging Prague a boor of extraordinary aspect gained admittance to his tent and offered, by way of amusing his majesty, to devour a large hog in his presence. Old General Konigsmark, who was in attendance, at once suggested that the man with the gargantuan appetite should be burned as a witch, whereupon the boor, whose feelings were hurt by this observation, exclaimed, "If your majesty will but make that old gentleman take off his sword and spurs I will eat him before I begin the pig." This was accompanied by such a "hideous expansion of the jaws and mouth" that the general, though he had given his "proofs" on many a bold, turned pale and fled to his tent.

An Odd Moorish Custom.
As a people the Moors are already well inclined to anything that glids life. A correspondent says: "Nothing delights them more as a means of agreeably spending an hour or two than squinting on their heels in the streets or on some door stoop, gazing at the passersby, exchanging compliments with their acquaintances. Native 'savells' consequently promenade with a piece of felt under their arms on which to sit when they wish."

Browning.
Browning had completed a whole volume of verse by the time he was twelve, but his earliest artistic effort was a painting of a cottage and rocks, which he painted at the age of two in lead pencil and black currant jam juice.

Plenty of Reason.
"I don't see why that tune haunts me constantly," complained a dull man who was always humming.
"Because you are forever murdering it!" came the quick reply from Foote.

FALL OPENING.

Throngs of Enthusiastic and Appreciative Style-Devotees Attended this Suberb Style Exhibition Yesterday.

THAT THE CRITICAL dressers of this section regard our openings as style events of utmost importance, has been demonstrated time and again, but never so emphatically as yesterday. The throngs that attended yesterday were by far the largest we have ever entertained and on all sides were heard exclamations of admiration and gratifying praise.

A HIGHLY SIGNIFICANT feature was the liberal purchasing of the new goods. Although there is usually very little business transacted on Opening Days, the prices we placed on the new styles proved so tempting that most of those who came only to look remained to buy and bought liberally.

IT IS THE best we have ever held—this Fall Opening is. It is COMPLETE, AUTHORITATIVE and COMPREHENSIVE. Thousands upon thousands of dollar's worth of fresh, beautiful new Fall merchandise is on display. Every dollar's worth carefully selected by our own buyers, from the productions of the leading manufacturers and importers in the trade markets. The style for Fall are strikingly attractive and we have been careful to select only the latest, most correct and most practical modes of all.

IF YOU COULD not come before, come now and be our guest, you are sure to enjoy yourself immensely and you will gain a fund of style information that will prove very valuable indeed.

We Again Extend a Very Cordial Invitation to You to Attend.

Dempster Co. at Beatrice Buys Buicks.

The Dempster Mill and Manufacturing Co. of Beatrice have purchased ten Buick cars for the use of their salesmen and demonstrators throughout the country. Two years ago they bought several different cars of popular make and maintained an accurate expense account of each. The test was very fair as they did not specialize on any particular item but kept account of the gasoline, oil, tires, repairs, and labor bill and the number of miles each car run. As Mr. Dempster says: "We know what we are talking about, we have tried them out, the Buick has the lowest upkeep expense of them all. Now we are using ten Buick cars and they are giving very satisfactory service."
