"The Common Law."

Thursday night of this week our local theatre constituents will have good and sufficient reasons for counting upon a dramatic treat of more than ordinary importance at the Keith in the production of Robert W. Chambers' celebrated work of fiction, "The Common Law," which tells a remarkable love story between two people, both gifted with rare intelligence and powers of reasoning not usually accorded to most mortals. The man wants to marry the girl and the girl wants to marry the man, but the girl thinks their positions in life are different, that she belongs to a different set than the one of which he is a member. She fears that their marriage will result in ruining his career and making him unhappy. This is worked out with due regard to stage requirements and the result is that the somewhat simple story Mr. Chambers has written has been worked up into a series of gripping situations and thrilling climaxes that speak well for the popularity of this new play.

Manager Woods has bestowed the greatest possible consideration in making up the cast for "The Common Law" and the production, which is carried in its entirety, meaning not only the scenic part, but the furniture and furnishings as well are provided on the most up-to-date scale.

There is a gauge to show how much gasoline on hand at all time, also a gauge showing how much lubricating oil is on hand and amount being supplied, all in sight of the driver. The Hudson is a clean car as far as taking care of it is concerned, no extra oil dripping around, no necessity of oil can being used about engine. This should mean much to the person taking care of their own car. The electric equipment of this car is unsurpassed.

Everything is convenient for the driver and passengers. Spark control automatic above 12 miles per hour. You can't make the engine knock by having the spark in wrong position. This makes driving easier. No crank on car—you can't get kicked. Car starts readily on second speed thereby needing only one shift to get into high, still retaining the well known advantages of sliding gear construction.
