TUESDAY, NOV. 12, 1912.

Before the smoke from the recent engagement has scarcely lifted, we suggest Bob LaFollette for 1916. Roosevelt robbed LaFollette of what rightly belonged to him; now let's all unite and give him his due.

Press dispatches state that Roosevelt received the election returns with "contentment." And why not? He accomplished what he desired, the defeat of his old friend; the man he recommended as a presidential candidate in 1908.

It is said Governor Aldrich is feeling very "sore" over his defeat; but probably not anymore so than some of his former friends felt when he, with six other governors, concluded that Roosevelt was the only "pebble on the beach."

In the next Nebraska legislature the democrats will have fifteen members in the senate and fifty-one in the house, while the republicans will have eighteen in the senate and forty-eight in the house. In one legislative district the vote is a tie.

Uncle Jim Hill, the railroad magnate, is quoted as saying that the success of the democrats will not hurt business because "the political revolution started by Theodore Roosevelt has been given a quietus, a vast majority still deeming it wise to stand by sound principles."

Our friend Ben Schleicher, at Brady, felt a little aggrieved last spring when we predicted his defeat. Now that the battle is over, he is probably convinced that we made at least a good guess. Anyway, Ben can make more money selling land than assisting to enact laws.

Governor Stubbs, of Kansas, another of those famous seven governors who appealed to Roosevelt to become a candidate, has fallen by the way side, having been defeated for United States senator. Acting in unison the voters of the two states made one political grave big enough for both Aldrich and Stubbs.

A telegram from Norfolk, Neb., dated two days following election says "three democrats are already scrambling for the postmastership, one got Congressman Stephens out of bed at Fremont at four o'clock in the morning to urge his claims." After a famine of twenty years, you can't blame the boys for hankering after a piece of pie.

A North Platte merchant who was a rampant bullmooser, announced on the evening of election when it was known that Wilson was winner, that he would countermand orders he had placed for spring delivery of goods. It was not till then that he realized that bullmoosism Wilson owed his election, and that had been a party to the election of a man in whom he seemed to have no confidence. It takes some people a long time to wake up.

The Lincoln correspondent of the Omaha Bee quotes Governor Aldrich as having declared that "I'll kick some one two years from now." In view of the fact that as one of the seven governors, he administered a rather severe chastisement to the republican party by defeating its president for a second term, one is inclined to wonder what more the esteemed governor wants, even though he was compelled to take some of the same medicine. Obviously if boiling and knifeing must continue, it must continue. Possibly, however, the rank and file of the party may arise and call a halt.—Grand Island Independent.

There should have been a million more votes this year than four years ago to keep pace with the country's increase in population. It is doubtful whether the 1912 total will equal that of 1908. In Governor Wilson's own state his vote is smaller than Bryan's in 1908. The stay at home vote was evidently enormous this year. Here in Nebraska, and probably elsewhere, large numbers of ballots were cast in which no choice was expressed as to president. This means that a million or two of people are sitting on the fence watching the political procession go by, content to wait another two or four years before taking a part in determining its direction. With the new president meanwhile elected by a popular plurality, the country is obviously in unstable political equilibrium, notwithstanding the superficial appearance of a landslide. The slightest misstep and the triumphant democracy will fall as far and as fast as it fell in 1894.—State Journal.

County News.

Over 5,000 tons of beets are stored in this territory west of North Platte for the Grand Island factory. Many beets are yet in the ground. J. R. White runs a wheel off his auto while driving into town today and narrowly averted a serious accident. Jim is wondering whether this is a political omen of any kind. The bids were opened Tuesday noon. The bids were the Platte Valley Irrigation board for the clearing out and widening of the ditch, also for bridge and check construction, but all were rejected. The board reports they were entirely too high. Bids will probably be asked for again shortly.—Hershey Times.

A barn belonging to M. Sieck, eight miles southwest of town, burned about midnight Tuesday. A considerable amount of grain, a team belonging to Will Stevens, set of harness belonging to Ed. Martin, a gun and various other articles were destroyed. Mr. Sieck and his tenant, W. W. Kirby, are the principal losers.—Sutherland Free Lance.

Fire Commissioner's Letter.

Office of State Fire Commissioner, Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 29th, 1912.
To City Councils and Citizens:

I desire to call your attention to the necessity of removing everything of a combustible nature from basements, outbuildings and lots so that a disastrous fire will not be caused by spontaneous combustion or from sparks from chimneys coming in contact with combustible material that is being permitted to accumulate in alleys and on lots in the several towns in the state. It is surprising how many business men seem to lose sight of the fact that this worthless accumulation of trash may be the cause of great damage to them and possibly their neighbors, when a little care and small amount of labor will entirely remove a possibility of a loss from this source.

In several cases in going into various towns of the state we find excelsior, paper, hay, straw, rags and other accumulations mixed in with grass, weeds and sunflowers; the weeds and sunflowers have been killed by the frost and are as inflammable as the material that has accumulated in and around them, and it makes the conditions very dangerous. City councils and citizens should see to it at once that all dangerous and inflammable rubbish is cleaned up, removed and destroyed before they have brought about the destruction of a large amount of valuable property and possibly human life. Do not forget that "procrastination may cause a conflagration," and that it is better to spend a few moments in removing the cause than to spend a life time of regrets for neglecting it.

Trusting that you will get busy and act on these suggestions, and that the result will be gratifying to all, I am very truly yours,

C. A. RANDALL
Chief Deputy.
