Passes Bogus Checks.

D. T. Oliver, Harry Mills and Levin who were engaged in the cleaning and pressing business here for several months, left the city Wednesday evening after passing several bogus checks and taking money for house rents due the McConnell real estate company.

One of the checks was used by Mills at the Carson & Landgraf barber shop amounting to $3.00, a second one was passed at Huffman's cigar store for $6.00 and the third at the Palace Cafe amounting to $7.00. The banks refused to cash same and a search for the guilty party was made. It was learned that the three fellows had purchased tickets to Cheyenne but Officer Otten has been unable to locate them although he has sent several messages along the line. Oliver had been rooming at the McConnell home and while there collected several house rents which he failed to turn in. The three men are indebted to a number of the local business houses.

George Sidney in "Bizzy Izzy."

"Bizzy Izzy," the 1913 edition of musical, songical, jocular entertainment conceived for the special purpose of presenting George Sidney to his friends, the American public, which comes to the Keith next Tuesday evening, will be a two-act potpourri of a little of everything that theatre-goers like. The first act will be devoted to a department store with "Izzy" making himself generally useful as the proprietor. A number of pretty girls in swell clothes will be found and every now and then they will let their customers wait while they come from behind the counters and sing something. Then when they have all done everything which the stage manager has arranged to be done in the department store half of the evening, the curtain will fall and in ten minutes will shift to a big summer hotel. The audience will learn from the program that "Izzy" has traded his store for the hotel and the stage manager will have arranged a number of outings for the summer girls, the Johnnies and the other guests. In all this Izzy is manifest as the presiding officer, and are one is aware of the passage of time two and a half hours have been spent in laughing, listening and admiring. Truly not an irksome way to spend an evening, still just the kind that theatre-goers seem to enjoy, and it's a business to furnish what the public want.

Will Install Electric Elevator.

Postmaster Davis has been advised by the treasury department that an electric automatic elevator will be installed in the federal building for the transportation of people to and from the second and third floors of the building. The elevator shaft was provided in the building plans, but there was some question as to whether the elevator would be installed. The information received by Postmaster Davis is good news, as the elevator will prove a great convenience to those having business with the U. S. land office and with the federal court when it is in session.
