Cody Unites with Sells-Floto.

A Denver dispatch appearing in the Omaha Bee of yesterday says: At the office of the Denver Post today, Colonel William Cody (Buffalo Bill) signed a contract that he will appear in conjunction with the Sell-Floto circus during the season of 1914 and thereafter. This is the first time that a circus of consequence and an attraction such as Colonel Cody exploits have ever joined forces.

The union of these two big attractions means one of the largest and most versatile exhibitions offered the public.

Gun Club Buys New Park.

Wednesday of this week the Buffalo Bill Gun Club purchased eight acres of land of Colonel Cody which will be used for trap-shooting and other recreative sports. The club, which for some time has used a site on the Cody land south of the track, was forced to abandon it when the land was laid out as an addition to the city. The track purchased is just north across the tract from the old grounds, and the building, traps and other accessories will be moved thereto at once and the new park plot in shape for the state shooting tournament which will be held here in May.

Eventually this park may be fitted up for base ball, foot ball and other athletic sports.

City Property for Sale.

We have a number of choicely located lots with and without buildings, close in with sewer, city water, electric lights and sidewalks that we are offering at very low prices. Much less than we will be able to offer them when the spring opens up.

In our judgment there will be a big advance on this class of property soon.

BUCHANAN & PATTERSON.

"Kindling."

Sarah Padden, one of the youngest and most interesting of the popular dramatic stars of the period, comes to the Keith next Thursday, Feb. 13th, presenting Charles Kenyon's remarkable play, "Kindling."

"Kindling" tugs at every woman's heart-strings and fills strong men's eyes with tears; it portrays the deep, hidden emotions of humanity whether in palace or hovel.

Maggie Schultz looks forward with terror to the birth of her baby in her dark, unlovely tenement home. She dares not tell her husband, lest he strangle the helpless bit of life when it should come into the world; to him it was little short of murder to bring a helpless child into being, amid such surroundings. It required only a paltry sum to go into far-away Wyoming, a paradise of fresh air and glowing sunlight, where her child could have a chance to grow up strong and decent.

The fateful opportunity presented itself and Maggie could not resist the terrible temptation to steal the money necessary to take them to the land of her dreams. The theft is detected and her husband is dumbfounded when she tremblingly reveals the truth to him.

"I never thought you were a thief, Maggie," murmurs her husband, brokenly, overwhelmed with the tragedy that had come upon them.

Fortunately, the people from whom she had taken the money were human enough to understand and to forgive the deed and it is through their aid that Maggie and Heinie turn their faces westward, where they find "roses blooming in Wyoming."

Woodmen of the World, are now organizing in your city. The W. O. W. have a surplus of over $17,500,000.00, and their rates are on adequate basis. Railroad men are especially invited to investigate.
