New Postoffice Hours.

Effective March 4th the new eight hour law enacted by congress which requires the eight hours of labor to be performed in a period of ten hours makes quite a change in the postoffice schedules.

Beginning today one clerk will go on duty at 4 a. m. and the lobby will be open to the public at 5 a. m. remaining open till 9 p. m. when the last dispatch of mail will be made in place of 7:30 as here-to-fore. Mail for Denver and points supplied by train No. 13 will be made up in the morning in place of the evening before, thus affording patrons the additional time in posting mail for this train. In addition to the above changes, the Money Order, Register and Postal Saving Bank Windows will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. in place of the former hours of 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. giving two additional hours service. It is the intention to open the general delivery window promptly at 8 a. m. and remain open until 6:30 p. m. not closing for the distribution of mail as formerly.

With these important changes the public will kindly refrain as far as possible from posting mail matter at the depot boxes, but bring the matter to postoffice so that it may be dispatched in the most direct manner.

The Postmaster asks the co-operation of the public in this endeavor to better the service; the problem is a difficult one and will take time and patience to bring to perfection.
