New Ice Plant Begins Operations

The Lowe & Hawley Ice and Cold Storage Plant, opened for business in their new building on East Front street the latter part of last week under very favorable conditions. The Baker ice-making machinery of the latest models has been installed under the direction of Clyde Griffin, an experienced erecting engineer who came here from Omaha for the purpose of placing the machinery in place. Upon test it was found the work can be done quickly and thoroughly with this up-to-date plant which is now in perfect running order. A large twenty-five horse power Fairbanks-Morse kerosene engine furnishes the power for the plant.

The tank in which the ice is frozen measures 28 feet in length 46 inches high and 10 feet in width and is made of quarter inch steel. It contains ninety-six compartments, each of which contains three hundred pounds of ice enclosed in cans measuring eleven inches in thickness, forty-four inches high and twenty-two inches wide. These are frozen over forty-eight hours and pulled at intervals of one hour and twelve minutes. The amount of ice manufactured daily is six tons. After being released from the ice can by the automatic can dump the cakes are placed in the storage room which will accommodate forty tons. The temperature in the tank is kept at 14 degrees above zero and the impurities, if any, which gather in the center of the blocks of ice are pumped out and a fresh supply of clean water substituted by the core pump.

Nine coils of one and one-fourth inch pipe are used to cool the brine. A large ammonia compressor charges the ammonia gas into a liquid form. The city water is used and passes through filters on which are two thicknesses of muslin and one of filter paper into the storage tank, thirty-six inches in diameter and five feet high from which the cans are filled before placing in the tank. Two air blowers are constantly blowing into the cans while the freezing is in process to agitate the water. Both Mr. Hawley and Mr. Lowe are hustlers and have endeavored to open a business that will furnish a quality of ice that will give satisfaction to their patrons and a credible enterprise for the city.

A Hostess and an Emergency.

Lady K. had sent Parnell an invitation to dinner, but Charles, who was very absentminded with respect to social functions and unconventional in the extreme, had forgotten the right date of the party. He therefore turned up a couple of evenings afterward an hour before the time. Lady K. glad to have him on any terms, did not deceive him as to his error, but hastily sent off several notes explaining the situation and asking some of her most intimate friends to help her in her emergency. She also ordered a hastily improvised dinner from a near caterer's.—"Life of Parnell."
