Producers Pay the Fiddler.

A statement was recently made by Congressman Sloan, of the Fourth Newestern two thirds of the United States Ogalalla for a week or more. has had no voice nor representation on committees in the making of the proposed new tariff as it came from the turned home Friday afternoon. house of representatives, of which he is a member.

He considers this very remarkable and also of vast concern to the section referred to, because it is the great producing region of the meat and agricultural products of this country, and still more worthy of note because the free list is to be made up almost entirely of the agricultural and meat products.

he agricultural and meat products.

A few years ago, says Congressman visit her brother Charles Frederici and Sloan, this would not have been so important, when the soil of the United States was practically feeding the whole world, but it does begin to mean something now when consumption is overtaking production and when the agricultural producer has reached the be pivotal point between production and gallon. consumption where protective tariff schedules for the farm will be needed.

He explains that while the democrats are making their tariff raid on agricultural products in working out their program to lower the "high cost of living." they are already, before the law is enacted, beginning to dodge behind the proposition to levy countervailing duties, a policy which of itself is insufficient and unsatisfactory.

This statement is well worth thinking about by western farmers. - Kearney

President Wilson is likely to have his first setback in a refusal of congress to take up currency legislation at this session. The fact seems to be that the democrats are unable to approach an agreement as to the kind of legislation they should favor. Secretary McAdoo and Chairman Glass are far apart on the question, with the president committed decisively to no particular measure. The secretary's action in preparing for an issue of Vreeland currency fact that a method of currency expansion for times of stringency is already in existence, making immediate action on new measures less essential than some supposed. - State Journal.
