Obituary.

Charley Parsons was born October 29, 1875, near Chester, Ohio, died July 20, 1913, near Cozad, Nebr. He was married to Miss Josephine E. Griffith, August 15, 1903 in Middleport, Ohio, and to this union one son was born, Martin Robert Parsons, whom with four brothers and four sisters is left to mourn his death.

Those present at the funeral at Gothenburg were: Geo. P. Parsons of North Platte, Nebr., Daniel Parsons, of Columbus, O., Perry Parsons, of Brady, Neb., C. E. Parsons, of Gothenburg, and Alice Brooks, of Cozad, Neb. Death was due to an accidental fall into an irrigation well at Cozad. All indications point to the fact that in falling he struck a cross piece which in some way caused a wrench that resulted in death. Mr. Parsons spent a number of years in and around North Platte, and was very well known generally. He was of Methodist faith and lived a straight forward, honest christian life, one that most any one could be proud to look back over and point an admiring finger to.

The Modern Woodmen had charge of the burial which they carried out in the true Modern Woodman way. The funeral was held at Gothenburg. Burial was made in the Peckham cemetery.

The Boer Umbrella.

Umbrellas for some inscrutable reason, for the seasons in South Africa are not so changeable as ours, are much used by the Boers. In common with our own views, the Boer believed that an umbrella gave a man an air of distinction, though the shocking specimens they carried, which reminded one very much of Salty (that is), would not have been calculated to possess this attribute among our own countrymen. Where these umbrellas came from is one of the many unknown facts of the old time republic. They were big and bulky, as a rule of alpacas, and the catch was generally out of order, but they were always to be found in the guest room when the "old man" was at home and always accompanied him in the spider when he journeyed into town on Saturday. They were rarely opened in public, because if the weather was wet the Boer stayed at home. An umbrella is not considered necessary on horseback, as a rule, but the Boer carried it there just the same as he did when driving in his spider and often used it as a whip to urge his steers on.—Out-fitter.

Rapid Voice Culture.

"Teaching the voice is a difficult task," said a great singer. "It is a fine thing to be a good teacher. Some pupils are so very stupid!"
"You can no more hurry a voice than you can hurry a flower, but most pupils want to become star singers in a month or two."
"A lady said to one of my friends, a superb teacher:
"I'm going abroad next month, and I want twenty-five lessons in voice culture before I sail."
"Impossible," said the teacher.
"Why impossible?" said the lady. "I could take two lessons a day some days."
"Or, better still," said my friend sarcastically, "you could take the whole twenty-five lessons all at once, one after the other. A day would do it, then."
"Splendid!" cried the lady. "Shall we make it tomorrow?"—Exchange.

Sweet Corn.

Sweet corn, classified by botanists as Zea mays, is a variation of Zea mays. It first came into cultivation in the region about Plymouth, Mass., in 1770, being received from the Indians of the Susquehanna. Whether some Indian Burbank originated it or whether it was the result of careful selection by copper colored cultivators is now unknown. Prior to 1854 only two varieties of sweet corn were known, but in 1859 sixty-one distinct sorts were listed. We do not know when sweet corn was introduced to Europe. Field corn was introduced in 1562. Sweet corn has been attracting some attention in Great Britain for several years, but is not yet generally grown. William Cobbett, the politician and writer, who died in 1835, tried to popularize the culture of field corn and grew it for some years at his farm in Surrey.—Rural New Yorker.

Pleasant Hypocrites.

In a school I once attended the most popular girl was the most tactful one. As far as I know, only one girl disliked her. That girl was spiteful, cross and therefore not very well liked. Do you know what she used to call our idol? A hypocrite. The words bothered me not a little, and I spoke to my chum about it, but she answered me in her thoughtful little way:
"Well, I guess that may be. Betty is a hypocrite if being a hypocrite means saying little kind things based on small pretenses and leaving unsaid the unkind things, no matter how good a reason there is for saying them. But she's a mighty comfortable person to have around. I wish that the world was full of such hypocrites!"—Christian Herald.

Cheese.

The British are the greatest cheese eaters in the world. England also heads the list for diversity of cheeses, seventeen different varieties being produced there. France comes next and then Italy, Holland, Norway and Sweden. British cheeses are all made from cows' milk and without any admixture save in the case of "font" cheddar, which is sometimes flavored with sage leaves. Foreign cheese makers show less exclusiveness. Roquefort is made from sheep's milk and Gruyere from goats' milk.

A Habit of Thought.

"The equator is an imaginary line running around the earth," said the boy who likes to tell what he has learned at school.
"An imaginary line," repeated the great railway financier absentmindedly.
"Who's promoting it?"—Washington Star.

In New York.

No, Marjorie, there is a difference between a taxidermist and a taxicabist. A taxidermist skins animals, and a taxicabist isn't so particular—hell skin anybody.—New York Clipper.
