Looking Backward—
Twenty-two Years Ago.

(Taken from The Tribune of July 29, 1891.)
J. B. McDonald, a member of the younger set of North Platte Hustlers, was collecting an exhibit of Lincoln county products for display at the state fair. A carload of the products was later taken to Lincoln.

Lester Tarkington entered the local shops as a machinist apprentice. Joe Perritt, a son of Fred Perritt, went out on Jack Morrow flats to visit a son of J. H. Hardin. The two, each aged about twelve, dressed up in Indian costume and with feathers in their hats and hatchets in their hands went howling over the prairie. Their fun was short-lived, for a man named Bateman noticed the disguised boys and taking up his shot-gun fired at the "Indians." After firing he was horrified to find that he had peppered with shot the son of a neighbor. Bateman hitched up a team, brought the boy to town and Dr. McCabe picked thirty shot out of his face, chest and arms.

Dr. Tomkins, the eminent English barrister and leading stockholder in the Wellfleet real estate and improvement company, was fined five dollars and costs in Justice of Peace Bishop's court at Wellfleet for "using language that grated harshly on the ears of the justice." He refused to pay the fine, and he was ordered taken to the North Platte jail. Upon arrival here a writ of habeas corpus was issued, and upon appearance before Judge Church he was discharged.

In a game of ball Lexington defeated North Platte by a score of six to four. The battery for North Platte was Jesse Norton and Jim Daly.

"Joe Fillion's band" rendered an open air concert which The Tribune pronounced exceptionally good.

Ernest Tramp, who had been working for the waterworks company, went to work in the shops as a helper in the sheet iron department.

Five new machinists were taken on at the shops, among whom was Fred Bremer.

The first option period which gave the city the right to purchase the water plant was drawing to a close, and a number of citizens favored voting bonds to purchase the plant.

C. L. Patterson had been given the contract to plow fire guards on each side of the Union Pacific tracks from North Platte to La Salle, thence north to Cheyenne and then east to Julesburg, a total distance of 450 miles. The guard was five furrows wide, and would be equivalent to one furrow 4,500 miles long.

Engineer Frank Tracy encountered a storm while coming down from Sidney that was so severe "that he was not sure but that his hair would not turn gray before he reached North Platte." He said the lightning was the most brilliant he had ever experienced, the thunder shook the hills and the rain fell in torrents.

Jay Gould accompanied by his daughters Helen and Annie and sons Howard and Frank, arrived on a special train and stopped over a couple of hours. Mr. Gould was piloted around the yards and through the shops by Genl. Manager Ed. Dickinson.

Hans Gertler was getting ready for a trip to Germany to visit his mother whom he had not seen for twenty-four years.

A hailstorm destroyed all crops in a two mile strip south of Wallace. Farmers who purchased binding twine, returned it to the dealer, as they had no need of it. The storm came just a day before the harvest was to begin.

Sunday School Convention.

A Sunday school convention and picnic dinner will be held at Bignell by all schools in reach of that place on Sunday, August 3, 1913. Every person is invited to attend, and bring well filled baskets. The convention will be held in Harry Stevens' grove, where there is plenty of shade and water. The exercises will commence at 10 a. m. with adjournment at noon until 1:30 p. m. when the exercises will again be resumed. A splendid program has been prepared by the committee, and all who want to hear something good along Sunday school lines cannot afford to miss this entertainment.

The entire day will be one of interest to all who attend, and it is expected a large crowd will be present, coming from North Platte, Maxwell, Fort McPherson and the Jack Morrow Flats.

Many Special Trains.

The movement of Knights Templar to the Denver conclave will begin next Saturday when the St. Louis commandery will pass through on a special train. So far the Union Pacific has scheduled twenty-six special trains between Omaha and Denver, the larger part of which will pass through North Platte, August 8th and 9th.

Costly Treatment.

"I was troubled with constipation and indigestion and spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and treatment," writes C. H. Hines, of Whitlow, Ark. "I went to a St. Louis hospital, also to a hospital in New Orleans, but no cure was effected. On returning home I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets, and worked right along. I used them for some time and am now all right." Sold by all dealers.
