Looking Backward— Twenty-two Years Ago.

(Taken from Tribune of August 12th, 1891.)

A new family organ of the one-stop variety (vox humans) was received at the home of John Ottenstein. She is now a fair and graceful belle sweetly attuned.

Frank Redmond was running around with a barn door smile exulting over a youngster that had arrived. Evidently "Dink" is twenty-two.

C. H. Rider brought to town two young bald eagles and they were made part of the Lincoln county exhibit at the state fair.

The weather was hot, the temperature ranging around the 100 mark. According to The Tribune the popular apparel for men was a white lawn tie, a fan and an umbrella—the ladies wore a little more.

The ladies of the Episcopal church gave a calico dancing party at the opera house, the ladies being attired in calico wrappers and the men in seersucker coats. Mrs. Geo. Finn was too gaily bedecked in red ribbons and was fined fifty cents.

Wheat in the southeast part of the county was being threshed and averaged from twenty-eight to thirty bushels per acre.

Charles Huffer, Jr., lost a valuable horse which strayed from the pasture and had a collision with a locomotive in the east part of town.

V. E. Meyer purchased the Stewart & Sherman stock of hardware of the First National bank, the latter having taken it on a mortgage.

The mill and elevator was sold at sheriff's sale for $5,675 to William Neville, who is supposed to represent M. C. Keith, one of the heaviest stockholders in the concern.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered Arthur Rush at his rooms in the Grady block. Arthur was then nine years old.

"Billy" Whitlock, then a prize gardener, exhibited a big ear of corn surrounded by six smaller ears. The Tribune remarked that Whitlock raised more garden truck on a twenty-foot plot than some people do on 160 acres.

The waterworks pumped 1,300,000 gallons of water in twenty-four hours which was the record breaker up to that time.

The North Platte Ditch Company sold its water right and land to a party of New York capitalists for $150,000. About 4,500 acres of land were included in the deal.
