

Church News

The Methodist Brotherhood met Tuesday evening at the church. The evening was pleasantly spent and an election of officers held. Wilson Tont was elected president, Peter Muir, vice-president; M. E. Scott, secretary; E. R. Plumer treasurer. Refreshments were served.

LUTHERAN

There will be no services except Sunday school at the Lutheran church next Sunday on account of the pastor's absence. He departed on Wednesday to attend the synodical convention at West Point, Neb. By the hearty cooperation of his local people he was able to take with him, in most respects, the best report of the four years of his pastorate here. He makes the address on Friday evening.

The Mission band will meet on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The monthly meeting of the Brotherhood will be at the home of Mr. August Splinter Monday evening, Oct. 13th.

METHODIST

Sunday morning will be a special rally day for the Sunday School. It is hoped that every member of the school will be present at 9:45 A. M. All who are not attending any other Sunday School are cordially invited. Preaching by the pastor at 11 a. m. Subject Creation. Epworth League at 6:30 p. m. All the young people and friends of the church are invited. Preaching at 7:30 p. m. Subject The Finger Pointed at a King. Good music at all services.

Good music at all services.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rally Day Exercises will be held next Sunday at 10 a. m. Miss Posey from China will take part in the exercises. All not connected with other Sunday Schools are invited. Preaching Services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Morning Theme: "Lesson from Autumn Leaves." Evening Theme: "The Greatness of Christ's Compassion."

CHRISTIAN

Steady progress is being shown both in interest, attendance and results in the meetings at the Christian church.

The meeting so far this week have been characterized by strong gospel messages, splendid music and beautiful illustrated songs. Additions to date thirty-four.

Tonight the subject of Mr. Whiston's sermon is "Universalism Exposed." Saturday night, "The Two Thrones." Mr. Whiston is putting in some of his strong lecture sermons this week [and you are missing treats in not hearing them.]

Sunday is to be a great day. There will be a Sunday school rally, when Mr. Whiston will give his lecture, "The Voyage of Life." Every one is most cordially invited to attend this rally and will be well repaid for doing so. At the morning service Sunday, Mr. Whiston will preach his sermon entitled, "The Old Love" based on the book of Revelation. This is a neglected book and not well understood so an able and instructive address is promised which will be interesting to all.

The subject for Sunday night will be "Knocking the Props." Everyone welcome. Meetings begin at 7:45 sharp.

Avoid Sedative Cough Medicines. If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codine, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorant like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture beds or breeding places for the germs of pneumonia and other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedative. For sale by all dealers.

EVIDENCE IN A PICTURE

By F. A. MITCHEL

Touring on foot along the coast of France between St. Nazaire and La Rochelle, sketching by the way, I came to a picturesque spot where stood a cottage. A boy often came and looked on while I worked. I was tempted to cease my landscape drawing and sketch the boy instead, for I never saw a finer model of a child of that age. I chatted with him and learned that he lived in the cottage with his mother, a widow; that his father had been a wealthy man, and until his father's death a few years before the family had lived in a chateau.

Curious to know something more of the story, I asked the boy if he would present to his mother the compliments of an American artist who was on a sketching tour and beg shelter for the night under her roof. He ran away with my message and soon returned to say that his mother would be happy at least to receive a visit, from monsieur. I folded my stool, eased and the package on my shoulder, accompanied the child to his home.

I found Mme. Clairmont, his mother, as aristocratic looking as her son. I told her that my curiosity had been excited by her boy as to her family story, and if it would be no intrusion upon her feelings I would like to know more of it. She made me welcome and gave me the facts.

She had married late in life a man much older than herself who was both rich, high born and in every way prominent. One child, my little friend Gaston, had been born to them at a time when it was supposed that she was too old to bear a child. Her husband's brother, who had been looking forward to inheriting the estate, had shown from the birth of Gaston that he was bitterly disappointed at being supplanted. But he gave no sign of any intention to dispute the succession till after the death of her husband a year ago.

M. Clairmont had scarcely been interred when his brother, Martin Clairmont, claimed the property on the ground that Gaston was not his son nor the son of his wife, but the child of one Annette Voudray, a laundress, who had been brought into the chateau to be palmed off as the child of Mme. Clairmont. The claimant obtained from this woman what purported to be a confession to that effect. There was a trial that was dragged through the courts for two years; then the highest court confirmed the decision of the lower ones, deciding in favor of Martin Clairmont, giving him his deceased brother's estate and Gaston to Annette Voudray.

Mme. Clairmont had possessed a little money of her own, with which she bought off the woman so far as Gaston was concerned, and he remained with his mother. They had come to live at the cottage, Mme. Clairmont having a small allowance from her relatives. Such was the story I got from the lady's lips, and I could not doubt her statement. One thing surprised me—that a court should be made to believe that Gaston was the son of a laundress. True, he did not especially resemble his mother, but I have observed that sons and daughters bear the closest resemblance to their parents at a corresponding age. One can hardly expect a child to resemble a parent of sixty.

Mme. Clairmont kindly offered me a room for the night, which I gladly accepted. Her personal effects, furniture, heirlooms, pictures, etc., had been removed from the chateau to the cottage. The room I accepted showed evidence of this. Over the mantel was a picture that interested me. It was roses arranged in an oval shape to make a border for a portrait. The portrait was that of an old woman. Stopping in strange places as I did, I carried with me the most powerful electric hand lamp I could buy. In order to see the portrait more distinctly I brought my lamp to bear on it. The strong light revealed that the old woman's picture had been painted over another picture. The one first painted was too indistinct for me to see any more of it than to warrant my assuming that it was the head and shoulders of a boy.

The next day I called Mme. Clairmont's attention to my discovery and was surprised to find that it was also a discovery for her. Being an artist, I was familiar with processes for removing paint and offered to attempt to take off enough of the first portrait to reveal the second, suggesting that there was a remote possibility of some family evidence behind it that would bear on her fortunes. She assented, and I at once began my work.

But I was obliged to work in a dark room and with my electric light, for the boy portrait was only visible under my electric lamp.

By very careful work I succeeded in removing enough of one layer without the others to show the boy's head and was surprised to reveal a portrait of little Gaston. But his mother said no; it was the head of Gaston's father at Gaston's present age.

That picture brought about a return of the Clairmont estate to its rightful owners. As to the picture, there was but one explanation. The original must have been painted in colors requiring certain artificial light to bring them out. Later some one not knowing that there was a portrait within the flower border had used the canvas for a second portrait.

Why Not Schools For Men?
No man ever feels the need of education so much as the man who sees opportunity for advancement open before him, but who does not dare to take it for fear that he can not rise to it. It is useless to say anything to such a man about neglected opportunities, and it is equally futile to say the same thing to the youth who is neglecting his studies. The first cannot go back and live his boyhood over; the latter cannot comprehend his danger, nor will he believe in his own possibilities, nor can he really study intelligently things for which he is not sufficiently mature. The few who mature early enough in life to go through technical schools or colleges are provided for. Can we not provide men's schools for those who mature normally?—American Magazine.

A City That Was a Failure.
Of all the seven cities of Asia perhaps Sardi has the most interesting and romantic history, and yet, with all its natural advantages, its wealth, its famous rulers, its wise counselors, its victorious armies, it was the greatest failure of them all, says the Christian Herald. The richest man in the world, Croesus, was king of Sardi; the wisest man, Solon, was her guest, and yet, through overconfidence and lack of watchfulness, time and again it was surprised, conquered and all but destroyed, until at last the disintegrating rock and soil from its own citadel, loosened by the winter rains and buried down by destructive earthquakes, buried the city thirty feet deep from the sight of man. It became a dead city, and it was buried by the forces of nature.

Regulating His Sleep.
John Wesley recognized the evils of oversleeping and gave a recipe whereby one may find out how much sleep he really wants. It was derived from experience. "I waked every night about 12 and lay awake for some time, and I readily concluded that this arose from my being longer in bed than nature required. I procured an alarm, which waked me next morning at 7 (an hour earlier than I rose the day before, yet I lay awake at night. The next morning I rose at 6; notwithstanding, I lay awake the second night. The third morning I rose at 5, nevertheless lay awake. The fourth morning I rose at 4, as I have done ever since, and I lay awake no more."—London Chronicle.

No Matter Who.
A party of women were being escorted through the state house the other day by a bowing and scraping guide. The women were of the enthusiastic type and raved over this and that and said, "Oh, simply too gorgeous." Finally they were shown the portrait of a former governor. "Oh, superb, isn't it?" said one of them. "An excellent likeness too. A portrait of whom did you say it was?"—Boston Traveler.

The Fishless Fisherman.
"So you took a day off from your work and went fishing?"
"Yes," replied the man who insists on being cheerful.
"Have any luck?"
"Certainly. A day off is luck enough."—Washington Star.

A Wafer.
"What," asked the teacher, "is the meaning of the word 'wafer'?"
"A wafer," replied Maurice, aged nine, "is a kid without any father or mother."—Chicago News.
