Goozee Discusses Picture Shows.

There is a minority of the people of North Platte that condemn theatres of all kinds. It was published some time since, that at a meeting of a church society, picture shows were denounced. We hear of this being done on other occasions. An honest opinion with a good intention must be respected, but a small minority should not be allowed to dictate the law of the town. No one institution is of more value to attract visitors to the city than a place of amusement. Travelers exert themselves to make North Platte and spend the evening at the picture shows. They would do the same for Sunday. Either the anti-Sunday amusement people are in a minority or they violated their principles by voting in Sunday baseball. And now, the man who is able to, cash out in an automobile and hurrah at a ball game; can come back and play billiards at the Elks club, can enjoy himself with his friends at a smoke house; but the poor man, who does not smoke, is forbidden to sit in quiet, and look at a photograph. He might laugh. He must be driven where his intellectual stomach will be nauseated with a Puritan man-made God—one having the vices of an oriental despot, jealousy, hatred, revenge, one who can be induced to set aside his laws by the flattery of an insignificant atom.

No one can point to any picture shown in North Platte that is not good and wholesome. Many are highly instructive and teach the best lesson. Not a few are extremely uplifting, above the plane of the average person and reaching to that of the most highly cultured winds.

But, when a petition is presented showing that majority of the people desire to see these pictures on Sunday, they are answered with an opposite action, dictated by a minority, and the man who presents their request is marked for punishment. He is arrested on a bogus charge.

When he defends himself, and shows his innocence, a new crime is invented for further persecution. He is warned that there is more to follow and finds it. He encloses his building front to protect his patrons from the cold; and a law is made forbidding any one to enter or stand there, or purchase a ticket unless there is a vacant seat inside.

After the man is inside, the position he may assume is prescribed for him. Only one position is permitted. It is expected that a later order will require every one to kneel all through the show.

We are warned now of the fate of Lexington—look, what the church people did to the picture shows there! Well, if we want to take such a town for our pattern, and after boasting that we have four theatres, publish that we are closing them up, we may as well quit spending money to boost the town.

One thing can be depended on, when the next proposition to vote bonds for improvements is presented, the friends of the picture shows will be heard from.

At the meeting of the Methodist brotherhood last evening, held at the parsonage, T. C. Patterson delivered an address on the Lincoln Highway.

Eva Hoagland, the little daughter of Senator and Mrs. W. V. Hoagland, was taken to a local hospital yesterday morning for surgical treatment. She had the leader of the little finger on her left hand severed and was taken to have it sewed together. The little girl was emptying a fish bowl and dropped it. In attempting to catch it, the edge of the glass struck her on the back of the left hand, making an ugly gash and severing the leader to her little finger.

A meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce was called for Wednesday evening but nothing definite could be done as there was not a quorum out. The men present recommended that get-together meeting be called for the first week in January and at that time there are many important matters to be brought before the club. At that time the club will consider the advisability of holding a "feed" every month during the winter months.

Toys! Toys! Toys! We have everything from Toyland. A fine line of dolls, doll beds, doll buggies, mechanical toys and games. Rincker Book & Drug Co.

A slight wreck occurred yesterday morning in the local railroad yards which tied up the main line for several hours. A baggage car and a mail car ran off a defective switch and the baggage car tipped over. The cars were being switched ready to be attached to a train, and when they ran on the broken switch left the rails and were pulled a little way on the ties, but the one car toppled over. The trains were able to leave the city, however, by switching on the main line father out in the yard. One car was undamaged but the one that went over was badly smashed up.

Probate Will of Mrs. Farrington

The will of the late Hattie Farrington came up in the county court Tuesday to be probated and for appointment of the executor. Edward R. Goodman, named in the will, was appointed executor. The will of Luther O. Farrington, husband of Mrs. Farrington, came up at the same time.

The Farrington estate is valued at $23,000 dollars and many beneficiaries are mentioned in the will. Mr. Farrington willed all the property to Mrs. Farrington at his death, and in Mrs. Farrington's will, many of the relatives of both are mentioned as beneficiaries.

The following are the heirs named: Charles Sicks, Lillian Sicks, James E. Hinton, Florence Hinton Greer, relatives of Mrs. Farrington, and Mrs. Amanda Cheney, Charles Cheney, Helen A. Roth, Helen Roth Smith, Frank Jackson, and Henry J. Roth, relatives of Mr. Farrington. The one thousand dollar life insurance of Mrs. Farrington is bequeathed the Voluntary Relief Association of the Grand International Auxiliary to B. of L. E. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, friends to the deceased, are also mentioned in the will.

It is so arranged in the will that if any should contest it, they will receive only fifty dollars, to be divided equally between the contestants, and the remainder of the estate will be divided among the non-contestants.
