

Cheese Industry.
One of the great milk markets in the cheese industry, which is concentrated in New York and Wisconsin. These states together make more than three-fourths of the national product. Their output is nearly equal, Wisconsin leading slightly. Michigan, Pennsylvania, California, Oregon, Illinois and Minnesota are, in the order named, the other principal cheese-making states. Nearly all the cheese is made in small factories. Wisconsin makes 47 per cent of the total.

ERUPTION SPREAD ON FACE

810 East Elm St., Streator, Ill.—"A running sore broke out above my right eye, which spread over my entire face. It started as a small pimple. I scratched it open and the contents of this small pimple ran down my face. Wherever this ran a new sore appeared. They itched and burned terribly; I couldn't touch my face it burned so. It disfigured my face terribly and I couldn't be seen for everyone was afraid of it. It looked like a disease of some kind; it was all red and a heavy white crust on it. Everybody kept out of my way, afraid it would spread. I lost rest at night and I couldn't bear to have anything touch my face, not even the pillow. I had to lie on the back of the head. I was always glad when morning came so I could get up. It was extremely painful.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. God in His Universe

By REV. J. H. RALSTON
Secretary of Correspondence Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"I am Jehovah, and there is none else, there is no God beside me; I will gird thee, though thou hast not known me." Isa. 45:5, R. V.

It is said in the Bible of certain men that God is not in all their thoughts, which might be interpreted, God is not in any of their thoughts. Multitudes do not think upon God, act as if there were no God, and are practically atheists. While men do not theoretically deny the existence of God, in fact, they do so in ignoring him. In an editorial in a reputable daily newspaper, entitled, "God Not to Blame," commendation was given to a Unitarian minister who, in speaking of the recent burning of a club house in St. Louis, where more than thirty persons lost their lives, said that the disaster was to be attributed to "criminal stupidity and obstinacy." Commendation was also given to another minister, who said that the disaster was an "evidence of the shallow fashion in which men accept social responsibility." In connection with these commendations this was said: "It used to be the fashion to blame God for such disasters, or at least to speak of them as mysterious dispensations of his providence. We have outgrown that cowardly and un-intelligent viewpoint." The question arises in connection with this editorial, Was God asleep when the club house burned, or was he so far away that he could not get information of the event? Such questions seem ridiculous, even blasphemous, for God was awake and everywhere immanent. Granting that as to human responsibility the remarks of both the ministers referred to were correct, does that rule God out? God may work through men or events for the accomplishment of his mysterious providence, as he may work without them. How could the destruction of Pompeii and Herculaneum, of St. Pierre, of Galveston, or of San Francisco be connected with criminal stupidity and obstinacy? As far as men can see, man could have nothing to do with those occurrences, and yet they were disasters greater than that in St. Louis. Had God anything to do with them? How God is in such events we are not able to explain, and so short-sighted are we in the face of disaster that cannot be charged to human stupidity and obstinacy that all we can do is to acknowledge that we cannot understand, and to say, "For so it seemed good in thy sight."

In the text there are three things to be noticed. God claims to be Lord, in the words, "I am Jehovah and there is none else." That is to say, "In all the great universe, I am the supreme God, I created the universe, I made the laws to control it, and nothing transpires within it without my knowledge." If we concede the knowledge of God, logic compels us to say that everything is according to his purpose, however we fail to reconcile some things with the character of God as loving and merciful.

God says to Cyrus, I will gird thee, which means, I will strengthen thee. As the armies of Cyrus swept over Asia, and kingdom after kingdom fell before him, as the great walls of Babylon, presumably impregnable, were no barrier to his entrance into the city, doubtless Cyrus would be tempted to think of himself as a great world conqueror, in the style of ancient days, although we do not have record to that effect. God had a great work for Cyrus to do, and, to impress this upon him, tells him that the strength that he would show in his military success was simply God's strength. In modern times great political, social and military movements are made, and those making them largely ignore God, but God is in all of them. God was moving in the Russo-Japanese war, in the Chinese revolution, in the war in the Balkan states, and he is now moving in Great Britain in connection with the Irish question, and in Mexico in connection with the civil war. In all the great movements of modern times, in the great inventions, and all accomplishments of men that are the wonder of an onlooking world, God is moving.

The charge of God against Cyrus was that as yet he was not recognizing God. That is precisely what we believe that editorial failed to do in connection with the St. Louis disaster. God was not ignorant of that disaster, nor of the burning of the steamer Slocum, nor of the sinking of the Titanic, although in connection with all these events man was criminally stupid and obstinate.

As the president of the United States is watchfully waiting the issue of the struggle in Mexico, so ought man to watchfully wait as he sees God working in the world. Shakespeare was not wrong when he said: "There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we may."

Current Modes for the Young Girl

THE taste of Paris designers has been called much in question of late. So much, that our faith is no longer pinned to it. But in Paris, as elsewhere, there are designers and designers. Certainly that one who originated and developed this gown for a young girl need have no misgivings as to our opinion.

There are designers who are original and also spectacular. No one doubts their genius, but it does not always blossom out into things beautiful. They launch many things which are interesting, but are not followed, except at a considerable distance. But the pretty gown of silk muslin shown here may be faithfully copied, and the result will revive our admiration for French refinement.

The silk underskirt is straight, with its scant fulness gathered in to an underbodice, of the same silk, at the waist line. The underbodice is cut with very short kimono sleeves and is full about the waist in the kimono fashion. Two founcings of the figured silk muslin (for which lace may be substituted) are gathered to the underskirt. The upper flounce droops a few inches at the back.

From the waist a short pannier made of chiffon extends to the swell of the hip. This is supported by a very fine wire at the edge and finished with a narrow ruffle of the same material. It falls over a bias fold of light rose-colored brocade, which is sewed to the foundation skirt.

A flounce of lace falls from under this fold and over a wide finishing fold of the brocade. This last fold extends from the right side to the left over the drapery and terminates under the crushed girdle just to the left of the front. The girdle is wide and fastens at the back under a flat bow.

There is a flaring lace collar across the back of the neck, which is supported by fine wires. A double ruffle of chiffon is arranged in surplice effect about the open neck. It terminates at the left side under the girdle. There are wide finishing ruffles on the short draped sleeves. The ruffles are joined to the sleeve with a fine narrow heading.

This design, appropriate as it is for the young girl, may be followed in a general way for an older person. The underbodice in this case would not be made quite so high and the girdle might be somewhat narrower. Drapery about the hips also could be fuller. But as it is a tasteful model for a young woman as well as for a young girl.

Shoes for Dressy Wear

IN the matter of footwear there is a demand for fine finish, elaboration in design, and general elegance of appearance that is spreading like news of war or the dancing craze. It keeps the designers and manufacturers of shoes on the anxious seat, ever alert to keep up with it. Milady of leisure and milady of busy days are asking for a few little things in this particular article of apparel. Her shoes must be shapely, substantial, becoming, well-made, out-of-the-ordinary, exquisitely finished, elaborated with contrasting materials and ornaments, and, of all things, comfortable. For who could tango in an ill-fitting shoe?

Perhaps it is the craze for dancing that has brought about this fastidiousness; if so, there is one thing in its favor, at least. No matter how plain the taste of any careful dresser, no matter how unobtrusive (not to mention unnoticeable) her gown, just get a glimpse of her feet, and the chances are that you will wonder at the amount of style and beauty she has managed to accomplish in clothing them. Trim, silk-clad ankles, faultless shoes with elegant lines, and, very likely, brilliant buckles of rhinestones or cut steel or plain metal are there.

These buckles come twinkling along the streets in the broad daylight, on their way to the five-o'clock-tea, or the formal call, or the club luncheon, or the concert, and are bits of finery which are discernible long before the wearer's millinery is anything but a blur.

A good example of a fashionable shoe is shown in the picture. It is classed as a "tie," but finished with buckles, and goes by the pretty name of the "Mignon" tie. The vamp is of patent leather with figured cloth quarters. One can buy shoes of this kind with colored quarters, as well as all black, for manufacturers make them up with dark blue, green, purple, gray or brown figured silk cloth with black vamp and heels.

From the standpoint of economy, the all-black shoe is the best choice, since it is dressy enough for any sort of dressy wear. But for those who do not need to consider the item of price, the colored quarter to match a costume is worth considering, even if its wear is limited.

Considering all that is embodied in shoes of this character, the prices asked for them are not extravagant. They sell at ten dollars a pair, with the cut rhinestone buckles included. They are lined with satin to match the color of the quarters. The buckles are an item of considerable expense, but their usefulness is not confined to one pair of shoes, or even to shoes at all.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Gave Hecklers a Chance.
At one time the Republicans of Chicago were out and were fighting Democracy on industrial conditions and the putative helplessness of a situation which did not let the Republicans in. A parade had started off and was well on its way—nearly to the file closers—when a ward boss saw that two lighted transparencies lacked carriers. He looked around hurriedly and noticed that one of his retainers was idle. "Here," he yelled, "shoulder this and get in line." The shanghaied recruit was a gambler who busied himself in ward politics on occasions, but for the most stuck to his trade when trade was possible. As he hoisted the lighted legend, "Open up the mills and factories," there was a chorus of derisive yells from the sidewalk: "Never mind the mills. Open up the poker games."

"Does your landlord use hot air?"
"Well, you just ought to hear his promises when we ask for repairs."

The trouble with the man of few words is that he is apt to use them until they become tiresome.

DEMAND IS FOR ABLE MAN

High Positions Waiting for Those Who Are Competent Properly to Fill Them.

We know a big firm in one of the oldest and most important industries in this country which has been hunting for over a year for a man to whom to pay $15,000, and they cannot find him, writes the editor of the American Machinist.

We know an executive who wants two or three men as assistants; if he could find them in his plant he would gladly pay them $40 a week. He has tried a considerable number in these positions during the past year, but without success as yet. He feels that he is positively hampered by the lack of them.

We know that there is an active demand for $2,000 men, and we can readily believe that there is a keen demand for $10,000 men. It is remarkable that in a plant employing, say a thousand men, there are so few who raise themselves above their fellows far enough to be conspicuous to the management. And even, of those few, not all have the initiative, the ginger, and faculty of being thorough that would make them of value as assistants to the executive. What a god-send to the engineer is the draughtsman who can do his own thinking, and dig out the solution of a problem somehow without constant prodding and pointing from the boss!

DID THE WORK Grew Strong on Right Food.

You can't grow strong by merely exercising. You must have food—the kind you can digest and assimilate.

Unless the food you eat is digested it adds to the burden the digestive organs have naturally to carry. This often means a nervous breakdown. "About a year ago," writes a Mass. lady, "I had quite a serious nervous breakdown caused, as I believed, by overwork and worry. I also suffered untold misery from dyspepsia.

"First I gave up my position, then I tried to find a remedy for my troubles, something that would make me well and strong, something to rest my tired stomach and build up my worn-out nerves and brain. "I tried one kind of medicine after another, but nothing seemed to help me.

"Finally a friend suggested change of food and recommended Grape-Nuts. With little or no faith in it, I tried a package. That was eight months ago and I have never been without it since. "Grape-Nuts did the work. It helped me grow strong and well. Grape-Nuts put new life into me, built up my whole system and made another woman of me!"

1913 RECORD Magnificent Crops in all Western Canada

All parts of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have produced wonderful yields of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax. Wheat graded from Contract to No. 1 Hard, weighed heavy and yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre; 22 bushels was about the total average. Mixed Farming may be considered fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. In 1912, and again in 1913, at Chicago, Manitoba carried off the Championship for beef steer. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. For the homesteader, the man who wishes to farm extensively, or the investor, Canada offers the biggest opportunity of any place on the continent.
