The water flowing through the streets does not come from overflowed irrigation ditches as many of our citizens suppose, but is the drainage of the territory between here and Birdwood siding. In fact the irrigation ditches are taking care of part of the surplus water, else the volume through town would be greater.

Judge Kinkaid had been to the Pacific coast, when he was informed of the Gering meeting and immediately came to Nebraska before finishing his visit on the coast.

The Gering meeting was relative to a new government irrigation canal which will water 107,000 acres of land, and will cost $6,000,000. Half of this land is in Wyoming and half in Nebraska, and in working the appropriation through congress Judge Kinkaid has been ably seconded by the Wyoming members in congress. Twelve Patients at Good Samaritan
There are now twelve patients receiving treatment at the Good Samaritan hospital. Several new patients have been taken there during the past week which brought the number up. There were at one time fourteen patients there; with that exception the hospital is now the fullest it has been since it started.

It requires fifteen patients to qualify the hospital for registration. As soon as possible the hospital will be registered with the state department. The blanks for registration have been here for some time ready for use as soon as possible.

Conditions at the hospital are very good except for the damage caused by the flood water. The water came into the basement badly yesterday and filled the boiler room up above the grates in the furnace, putting the fire out.

They were Russell McMichael, Russell Derryberry, Stover Deats, Charles Eshelman, William Elder and Edward Rehausen.

Police Force Over-Zealous

Our police force is becoming over-zealous in their efforts to meet the red-hot ante-election demands of the Daily Telegraph that gambling must cease. Sunday night at 10:30 Officers Baker and Bybee went to a room in a Sixth street lodging house, knocked on the locked door and demanded that in the name of the law it be opened. After a lapse of five minutes the door was unlocked and opened disclosing the presence of five pious-looking and well known citizens. On the cloth covered table was a well worn bible, on the floor a few bottles of unfermented wine and there was carpet dust on the knees of the devout five. The officers retired fully satisfied that they had not broken up a poker game, but had intruded into a meeting of prayer and meditation preparatory to the tabernacle meetings.

County Commissioner E. H. Springer of Brady Island arrived in the city yesterday to attend a meeting of the county board.
