Boosters Win in the Tenth

There was a battle royal down at the ball lot Tuesday afternoon between Mr. Bailey, the spit ball artist of the Grant team, and Mr. Luby who did the twirling for the Boosters, and the game entered the tenth frame before the Grant players succumbed to a score of four to three.

North Platte fans looked upon the Grant players as corn cultivators, and anticipating that they would prove "easy," the attendance was small, very small, in fact. But let it be recorded that while the Grant boys come from a wayside village surrounded by corn fields, and may be good cultivators of corn, they likewise know ball, and had it not been for several costly errors, they would have returned home with the Boosters' bacon wrapped in tissue paper and securely tied in a gunny sack.

Bailey, the Grant pitcher, isn't a particularly handsome individual, but what he lacks in appearance he makes up in the "break" of his spit ball, and it "broke" so well Tuesday that eighteen Boosters sawed the air—eighteen strike outs, is going some, we guess—and only seven hits were made. Grant made three errors and they were bad ones.

Luby was somewhat wild, just a little "off," if you please, and while he struck out twelve men, he was touched up for nine hits. He could, however, go into the box tomorrow and shut out Grant, and not work so hard as he did Tuesday. The Boosters were credited with two errors.

The Boosters made two runs in the early frames, which were tied by Grant in the seventh, and in the eighth Grant scored again, making it two to three. In the ninth "Ping" Sandall said to himself, "here's where something must be did," and he did it by raising one for three bags, and an overthrow to third allowed him to plank his number thirteen on the home sack, tying the score. Luby tightened up in the tenth and had the visitors at his mercy, and when the Boosters came in Bright made a two bagger, was advanced to third by Gettman's sacrifice and came in on a safety by Holliday and it was all off. It was some ball game; none better this season, in fact, and the "corn cultivators" shouldn't worry because they lost.

Hayes County Crops Destroyed.

John E. Koontz, returned the early part of the week from a visit with relatives in Hayes county, and while there witnessed the devastation wrought by a hailstorm last week. The territory covered by the storm was four miles wide and thirty miles long and the destruction to crops was practically complete. Small grain was just ready for cutting when the storm came, and promised an unusual yield. Even the prairie grass was chopped to pieces, and it is related that at one farm house the hail stones were so large as to break through the roof and that the children in the family were placed under the beds to keep them from being injured by the hail. Hayes county is directly south of this county.

Planning Fair Campaign

A campaign having for its object the boosting of the county fair, is being planned by President Pielstick and Secretary Sebastian of the fair association and Messrs. Snyder and Gilman of the experimental station. The plan is to hold school house meetings in a number of precincts, give talks on the fair, distribute literature and premium lists, and work in conjunction with the precinct committeemen in getting everybody interested in making exhibits at the fair.

The case of the state against Wm. Beatty and Warren Soules, charged with cattle stealing with C. I. Hill as the complaining witness, was called in the county court Tuesday and a continuance for one week taken by the defendants. Each furnished bonds in the sum of $300.
