THE REYNOLDS BUILDING IS NOW COMPLETED

Work on the Reynolds building will be completed in a short time making it one of the most up-to-date and convenient business buildings in the city. Owing to unavoidable delays the remodeling was not completed as soon as was expected but the results are more gratifying than if the work had been hurried. The double stores occupied by Rincker and Stone Drug companies have been extended both on the ground and second floors fifty feet, making the length of the building one hundred and twenty-four feet. A four foot oak stairway divides the stores, the lower steps of which are of marble and the entrance of tile. The lower half walls of the stairway and halls are of keen cement and the rooms of the second floor are tinted in light brown and tan shades with wood work of yellow pine. The north east corner rooms on this floor have been rented by Dr. H. C. Brock, who has divided them into an office, reception hall, dental room and work room and is fitting them up with new and attractive furnishings. County Attorney Geo. Gibbs has arranged his law office in room 6 directly to the right of the stairway landing. Dr. J. B. Redfield has furnished the south front rooms for a receiving room and an office, and an adjoining room has been finished in white enamel with corresponding fixtures for an operating or dressing apartment. Several toilet rooms have been arranged to the left of the lobby and equipment to accommodate twenty-five telephones, should that number be needed, has been placed in one of the smaller rooms. Photographer Brooks has taken possession of several rooms at the west end of the building, one of which has been set aside for a rest room and office, opening into which are two dressing rooms, store and stock room and a thirty-five foot gallery which contains all the paraphernalia for first class photography, including cabinets for plates with sliding doors, home portrait windows and a twelve by fourteen skylight. In the dark room, are found concrete sinks and electric printing machines, and adjoining this a work room containing the enlarging machine, spacious shelves and cabinets for films and plates. The former windows were removed and in their place are large double ones situated to give the best possible light and ventilation. Each room is complete with water, lights, heat and gas. The floors are finished in maple and a new metal ceiling replaces the former one. A new thirty-two pound tin roof has also been added. Glass cases containing the names of the tenants will be placed in the halls.

The 1915 Chautauqua Closes

During the closing sessions of the Chautauqua, a proposition was made to the attendants by a committee of the directors to decide the best method of managing the Chautauqua next year. The suggestion that one hundred and forty men would each agree to take four tickets, to use or to sell met with the approval of all interested and the names of those volunteering were taken down by the secretary in order that the contract could be closed before the departure of the Chautauqua crew who left yesterday morning. A large number have pledged themselves for tickets, ten of whom will take ten each and others take from two to six. Twelve more names are needed to make required number and it is thought they can be procured this week. The average daily attendance at the Chautauqua was about 1,000 in the afternoon and 1,300 in the evening. The American Girls, Senator Gore and the Brooks-Ingham Co., who entertained during the closing were among the best attractions on the program.

A Sad Accident

A sad accident occurred at the Broemer farm north of town Wednesday evening when the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Glenson was drowned in the cellar of the house. The child, which was a little over a year old, was missed for some time and a search was made which resulted in finding the body in the cellar which was almost full of water. Physicians from this city were summoned but their efforts to restore life were of no avail. The remains were taken to the Howe & Maloney undertaking parlors and funeral services will be held in this city today. Interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery.

The Passing of Judge Munger

Judge W. H. Munger, of Omaha, died at his home Wednesday night, following a severe illness of nearly a year's duration, due to arterio-sclerosis, with other complications. At his bedside were his wife, two daughters, Mrs. H. P. Bell of Silver Creek, Neb., and Mrs. E. A. Jackson of Dallas, S. D., and his son, Horton Munger, of this city, the latter reaching there but a few hours before his death.

When a young man, Judge Munger entered into the practice of law in Fremont, and continued practicing in that city until his appointment to the federal bench during Cleveland's last administration. At that time the family moved to Omaha, where the Judge and Mrs. Munger have since resided. On this coming 12th of October, Judge Munger would have celebrated his seventieth birthday, at which time he expected to retire from from the bench.

Interment will probably be made at Fremont some time Saturday.

Judge Munger was born in Bergen, Genesee county, New York, October 19th, 1845. He was admitted to the bar in 1868. On March 30, 1871 he was married to Jennie M. Fowler, who survives him. During the eighteen years that he had been on the federal bench he had many important cases to decide. He was of a most lovable disposition and one of the most liked men who ever held the office.
