

Coiffures for the Small Turbans

Just how the modish girl manages to achieve certain things is the question that engages the attention of other girls and inspires the wonderment and awe of the sterner sex. How does she get on a tiny turban over the mass of fluffy hair which crowned her head a moment? Where has said hair disappeared? How does she take on, with the foolish little turban, a "nobody home" expression that suits it exactly but makes one look twice to be sure of her identity? Some of these questions can be answered and some cannot, because the maid herself hardly knows how she manages.

Just now some of the new hair dressing styles demand that the forehead shall be uncovered and that simplicity in the coiffure be made a feature of its attraction. Some daring souls have even gone to the extreme of combing the hair straight back from the forehead and twisting the ends into a plain, high coil at the top of the head. A round, young face with an abundance of hair to frame it may manage a coiffure of distinction by such simple means, but nearly all people need soft, curving lines about the forehead.

A clever coiffure is shown in the picture, in which the hair is not waved but laid in pretty curves about the face by pinning locks of it at each side to form what are called "water waves." One way of doing this is to dampen the hair and comb it back. A band is then bound tightly about the head and the hair pulled forward in curves by means of the toilet comb. The waves are then pinned with small wire pins in the position left by the comb.

The back hair may be arranged in a psyche knot, as shown in the picture, or in three flat coils across the back of the head. Or it may be worn in a high coil at the top of the head. In any case the band is not taken off until the hairdress is finished.

Narrow velvet bands about the hair are very fashionable, and they are also very useful in holding the hair in place.

Stripes Popular.

A season of stripes—everything; gowns, hats, sunshades, furniture! 'Twould be easier to delineate what is not striped than what is. The modish stripe of black and white, red and white and white with green, has found its way to square-shaped candles, too. Twenty cents each are these, and just the thing for some room—possibly yours.

Made Elegant by Needlecraft

No one fails to appreciate the charm of the lace-trimmed and fluffy night dresses that make up the mass of these garments. Always their producers are presenting new designs that captivate the eye with the dainty combination of ribbons and laces. But there is another charm which belongs to the hand-embroidered gown—it is the charm of elegance as well as beauty. There is nothing quite equal to hand embroidery in expressing a refinement of taste, in undergarments and other lingerie.

The needlewoman who can do fine work can provide herself with lingerie fit for a queen by virtue of her needlecraft. Or if she wishes to turn her accomplishment to profit she may be sure that an appreciative world is ready to admire—and pay for—expert needlework. No one should put a low price on first-class hand embroidery—not time alone, but ability to do and quality of workmanship are to be considered in fixing its price.

stitches combine to make the success of the design. Gowns of this kind are prettiest when cut by the simplest patterns. In the example shown here the sleeves and body are in one; the shape of a flaring sleeve is outlined by scallops embroidered in lines on the body. They merely add graceful lines and pleasing workmanship, that is, they are a part of the "finish" which makes the hand-embroidered garment elegant above others.

Lightweight, smoothly woven linen or the best of fine cotton fabrics are the materials which it is worth while to choose when handwork is to be used in decorating lingerie.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Gold Fringe Trimming.
Do you remember the time when the mere mention of fringe as a trimming for gowns caused you to curl up your lips and elevate your nose? Do not distort your features when you read of gold fringe trimming an evening gown of point d'esprit, for it is most effective and really enables the gown to be described as gorgeous. The fringe is used around the bottom of the skirt, in a diagonal line across the front of the bodice and along the edge of the flowing sleeves of tulle.

CULTIVATION IN AN ORCHARD

Ground Should Be Gone Over Every Week or Ten Days to Liberate Plant Food and Save Moisture.

As the principal objects of summer cultivation are to liberate plant food and conserve soil moisture, the ground should be gone over once every week or ten days according to the frequency of rains. The cultivation should be discontinued about the middle of July as the trees are no longer in a state of vigorous growth. The fruit buds for the next year are at this time fully matured and the care of the trees can now be ended by the sowing of a cover crop of some kind. When plowed under the next spring this crop supplies the necessary amount of humus, stores up nitrogen and prevents the soil from being washed by heavy rains.

There is a wide variety of suitable cover crops, but legumes are the most suitable. Buckwheat is one of the best non-nitrogen gathering crops and may be sown late in the summer. Vetches are very good cover crops. Winter rye is less suitable but may be used when the earlier sown crops fail.

As soil protection and promotion of fertility are the objects in view, these crops should be sown thick enough to closely cover the ground. These crops supply the required amount of nitrogen in most cases, if not, the trees will show it by light colored, unhealthy looking foliage and stunted growths. Nitrate of soda, in quantities of from 50 to 100 pounds per acre, sown early in the spring is the best method of supplying nitrogen when it is needed.

Many growers contend that late cultivation and fertilization promotes a strong growth of new wood, which by being frozen in the winter will injure the trees, while others claim the contrary, and mention the results of experiments to prove their argument.

BLACK KNOT OF PLUM TREES

Very Prevalent Disease and Also Affects Wild Cherry—Cut Off Branches Showing Affection.

Black knot is a very prevalent disease on plum trees and it also affects the wild cherry, often causing it to spread to cultivated trees.

The way to keep it in control is to cut off and burn every small branch that shows any sign of the disease as fast as it appears.

If large branches are affected that cannot well be spared, the cankers or knots may be pared off closely and the wounds covered with coal tar, which will kill any lurking germs and preserve the wood from decay.

Protecting Cherries.

Two methods of keeping birds away from berries and cherries: 1. Get some pieces of bright tin and so hang them that they'll flap in the wind against a pole; 10 by 12 inches is a good size; punch a hole near the edge for the string. 2. Tie a cord to a potato, stick it full of large feathers, and hang it where it will sway in the wind over the fruit to be protected; make a number of these if one is not sufficient.

Many Kinds of Blackberries.

One hundred and forty different varieties of blackberries are now recognized, divided into three classes—the hardy, the half hardy and the tender. The hardy variety should be able to withstand a temperature of 30 degrees Fahrenheit, as well as the sudden changes of temperature in the western states. The half hardy class is more susceptible both to cold and to change, and the tender variety can only be grown where mild winters prevail.

WANTED TO SEE THE FINISH

Small Girl Did Not Consider That the End of the Proceedings Had Been Reached.

The short interval that elapsed between the visit of the little girl to a commencement exercise and attendance at an old-fashioned camp-meeting may explain a remark that she made at the religious event. She went there with her grandmother, and, very much interested in everything that occurred, asked numerous questions which her grandparent attempted to answer to the best of her ability. "Who is that woman up there and what is she doing?" asked the little girl, referring to a woman who was on her knees in the "amen corner." "I don't know who she is, but she's going to get religion," was the reply. Some time elapsed and the woman remained on her knees. Finally, the grandmother of the little girl became tired of the service and announced that it was time to leave. "Oh, let's not go yet," exclaimed her grandchild. "Let's wait and see 'em give it to her."—Louisville Times.

THE UNMARKED GRAVE

The unmarked grave is one of the saddest things in the world. Every human being feels strongly the desire to pay the last tribute of respect to his dead. The Instructable Grave Marker is made from a non-corroding metal, measuring 12x36 inches with legs attached for anchoring in concrete. The name and dates are drilled into the marker similar to the costly monuments. The delivered cost of this marker is $6. For either temporary or permanent marking this instructable monument is ideal. Write for more information. County Supply Co., Box 219, Sioux City, Ia.
