The North Platte Depot.

W. T. Wilcox in a letter to the Telegraph surmises that the "good news" told The Tribune editor related to a new depot. In this Mr. Wilcox errs, but The Tribune endorses what he says in regard to a new depot; namely that the matter should be taken up by the Chamber of Commerce, and if that body is unsuccessful in bringing about the desired result, it will not be out of place to invoke the aid of the state railway commission.

There have been two reasons why The Tribune has not up to this time made a fight for a new depot.

First, when Mr. Mohler was here four of five years ago he was present at a meeting held at the Elks' home and in a talk to the hundred or more business men and citizens stated that the Union Pacific had under contemplation the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars in terminal improvements, including a round house. He submitted to his hearers two propositions; the building of a new depot at a cost of $80,000 or the terminal improvements to cost several hundred thousand; both could not be built, which did the North Platte people want? The sense of the meeting was that the terminal improvements be made.

Since then the greater part of the terminal improvements have been finished, in fact quite a period of time has elapsed since the work has been completed, the company has had time to recover from that expenditure, and it is not unreasonable now to ask that it proceed with the erection of the $80,000 depot.

The second reason why The Tribune has "laid off" on asking for the new depot was because that so long as the people did not take sufficient civic pride to better the conditions of the city they could not consistently ask an outside party to expend money to beautify and improve its property. That was a fair and impartial view, was it not?

But now that North Platte has turned over a new leaf, and on the top of the page has written in bright red letters; "We are Boosters, Watch us Grow," and have voted bonds for street paving, have accepted a contract for better lights, and have voted bonds for a public park, and have done so in a most emphatic manner; the city has placed itself in a position to say to the Union Pacific: We are now helping ourselves, we want you to join us in making North Platte a bigger and better town, and by so doing you will further your own interests as we are furthering ours.

Our citizens, the traveling public, President Mohler and Genl. Manager Ware are a unit in declaring that the present depot is inadequate, unsanitary, a blot on the otherwise well-kept condition of the Union Pacific, and a discredit to a town of over 6,000 people who have awakened from their lethargy. The Union Pacific, like other railroads, may not be "laying up money," it may not have cash on hand to build a new depot, but we know its credit is as good as any corporation in the country and that it can easily borrow the money; just as North Platte will do for its street paving and public park.

The Chamber of Commerce should at once go on record as favoring a new depot, it should appoint a committee to confer with President Mohler and the board of directors in New York do not favor a recommendation from Mr. Mohler that the depot be built, then the matter should be carried to the railway commission.
