The drill team of the Yeoman lodge will hold their first annual ball at the Lloyd opera house on Thursday evening, October 28th. Arrangements are being made to make it a very enjoyable affair.

Sunday a boy in Omaha was run over by an auto and killed. He with another boy was playing in the street, one of whom run to one side the other to the other side; in avoiding one the autoist run into the other. We refer to this particularly because the same action of children frequently occurs on our street and only by watchfulness on the part of the drivers are accidents avoided. In this a note of warning is sounded to parents.

Three Million More Men
Fifteen months in the field, with expenditure of millions of men and billions of treasure, have simply served to outline in a vague way the magnitude of the war in Europe. It is too great to be more than hazily comprehended by the ordinary mortal, whose mind fails to grasp the significance of the tremendous totals daily dealt in when reporting on the operations of the armies. One present development will help some towards a better understanding of what it all means. England is called upon to furnish three millions more of fighting men. This means more than twice the total population of Nebraska, and not in men, women and children, but in young, vigorous, sound manhood of the empire, its best possession.

The excuse given for the demand is that the spectacle will discourage the Germans, who are estimated as having some ten millions of fighting men yet in reserve, and who may be deterred from throwing them into the mill of destruction. The war does not turn on this factor at present. The Germans are as energetic and as resourceful as ever, and show little disposition to abandon their purpose. Press agent stories from the front must be taken with considerable allowance. We are getting just such information as the belligerents want us to have, and none other. They are engaged in a serious undertaking, and neither side is taking the other into its confidence at this time. All the neutral world really knows is that men are being wasted along with wealth, and the proceedings at present are such as to support the thought that only the exhaustion of the combatants can end the struggle.

Thirty million men are under arms in Europe, and other millions may yet be drawn into the fighting; the end is beyond conjecture, but the whole should make Americans more than ever thankful for the peace they enjoy.—Omaha Bee.

CHARLES LIERK DIES AT AN OMAHA HOSPITAL
Charles Lierk, for thirty-one years a resident of North Platte, died at St. Joseph's hospital Saturday morning, following an operation for stomach trouble performed the preceding Thursday morning. He had been afflicted with the trouble for a considerable time, but he patiently bore the affliction until it became so acute that it was necessary to have an operation performed. The shock was, however, too great for his system to withstand. Mrs. Lierk was in Omaha at the time.

The remains were brought home Sunday evening and met at the depot by an escort of the I. O. O. F. lodge. The funeral will be held at the Lutheran church at 2:30 this afternoon, and will be attended by delegations of the Odd Fellows and Modern Woodmen, of which lodges he was a member.

Charles Lierk was born in Mechelburg, Scherwin, Germany, November 29, 1859. After serving the required time in the German cavalry, he came to the United States and settled in Cleveland, Ohio, with his father and mother. He remained there for a year and then came to Nebraska, settling in Hayes county. In 1884, after proving up on his homestead, he came to North Platte, where he had since resided continuously, and since 1887 had been in the continuous employ of the Union Pacific.

In 1889 he was united in marriage to Emma Oleson, to which three children were born, Charles, Jr., Hazel and June, the latter having died in infancy.

He is survived by his wife, and the children Charles, Jr., and Hazel of this city and Mrs. John Monnich, of Fremont, a brother living in Omaha and a brother and sister in Cleveland.

Charles Lierk was a man of whom nothing but good could be said—a consistent member of the Lutheran church, a good citizen and a man respected and esteemed by all who knew him. He was devoted to his home, his wife and his children, and to them in this hour of sorrow the condolence of all friends are extended.

How to Build a Convenient Corn Crib

A corn crib should always be constructed so that it can be filled and emptied with the least labor.

For level ground, a good type is double cribs with an elevated driveway through the center of the building and elevated approaches at each end. This enables the loads to be driven through the cribs and dumped or scooped out of the wagons without any high pitching.

A good crib pays for itself in a few years by keeping the corn in such condition that it will bring you better prices.

We would like to talk to you about your corn crib. Come in.
