The following account of the wedding of Marston Doolittle, formerly of this city, is taken from a Long Beach, Cal., paper dated November 6th:

Marston Doolittle, tall, dark and handsome; Hazel Hall, fair, with golden tints in her hair and exquisite coloring, made one of the handsomest couples of the year in Long Beach as they stood before a bank of white and yellow chrysanthemums giving their responses to the Episcopalian marriage service read by the Rev. Arnold Bode of St. Luke's church Saturday evening.

The ceremony was read at eight at the home of the bride's mother Mrs. Pearl Hall, 233 East Tenth street, J. S. Durham, the bride's uncle entrusting her to the groom's protection. There were no attendants, bride and groom marching down the stairs to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Mrs. J. S. Durham at the piano. The bride was frocked in her traveling suit of tailored dark blue, with black velvet turban.

Prefacing the wedding march were the tenor solos by Warren Hume, who sang, "Oh Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly," and following congratulations a nuptial musical program was given by Deane Bode, in piano numbers; Mr. Hume vocal solos, and George Moore, flute selections.

Serving were Miss Louva Hall and Miss Mildred Whitall, the menu continuing the yellow and white color tones, and these girlhood chums of the bride also received the guests.
