A Reader's Editorial.

A Quaker from Pennsylvania during the Civil war had enlisted for the Union. Being on the firing line one day he said to himself, "I don't believe in taking human life, I am opposed to killing, and I have nothing against thee, but thou art tight where I am going to shoot."
 He believed in this great free country; a union, a nation of people, free, happy and prosperous. We like him, don't believe in war; we don't like killing people, but thou must not interfere with our splendid civilization, thou must not get in the way of progress, thou must not subject our great free people to indignities or thou may be right where we are going to shoot. We have good people of all nations in this country; they are prosperous and happy—beyond the dreams of parents or of childhood. We are afraid of no nation because we have done no wrong; we beg no favors for we have broken no law; free intercourse is our right in the cause of humanity; greater than treaties, more patent than scraps of paper.

The weaker of the derolect nations may bid for support, out of our abundance we will give to relieve; the stronger nation may bid for our approval, to them we say, do right. Stop blood shed, misery and grief; return to the family the father, to the sister her brother, to the sweetheart her lover. Prove to the world your country deserves our approval. Do not drag us into this war, or you may be right where we are going to shoot.

NORTH PLATTE EVIDENCE FOR NORTH PLATTE PEOPLE

The Statements of North Platte Residents Are Surely More Reliable Than Those of Utter Strangers.

Home testimony is real proof. Public statements of North Platte people carry real weight.

What a neighbor or friend says compels respect.

The word of one whose home is far away invites your doubts.

Here's a North Platte man's statement.

And it's for North Platte people's benefit.

Such evidence is convincing.

That's the kind of proof that backs Doan's Kidney Pills.

Charles F. Burroughs, 222 S. Pine St., North Platte, says: "Several years ago I had occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good kidney medicine. I suffered from burning pains in the small of my back and my kidneys were very weak. Doan's Kidney Pills soon cured me completely. I have not been bothered by kidney trouble since. I take pleasure in endorsing this medicine for the benefit of other kidney sufferers."

THE STORY OF "MY HOME TOWN GIRL."

Hyams and McIntyre in "My Home Town Girl," Perry J. Kelly's latest musical comedy offering, and said to be the most striking musical success of the present season, will be seen at Keith theatre, Tuesday, February 1st.

John Hyams, as Tony Darling, a New York society man, best known for his pleasure seeking proclivities about town, is heir to a million on condition of his good behavior for a year and is under espionage of an unreasonably prejudiced aunt. Tony is summoned to the bride shop of Madam Marie, on Fifth Avenue by his best friend, Dudley van Courtland, who on the eve of his marriage to Eleanor Arlington, is being pursued for blackmail by Lela Lorraine, a dancer of the "Follies," in whose company he was arrested for speeding while at college at New Haven, giving his name as Tony Darling. He confesses this circumstance to Tony and implores him to produce the money to keep Lela quiet.

Eleanor is expecting her supposedly pious uncle, Peter Petybone, from Grand Rapids, with his adopted niece, Dorothy (Miss McIntyre), to attend the wedding. They cause consternation by appearing unexpectedly at the bride shop where Tony is in hiding after interviewing Dudley and Eleanor and Dudley are inspecting gowns. Madam Marie recognizes Peter as her "Detroit John" who proposed to her when she was in the chorus of "Floradora" and they slyly renew the old romance.

Dorothy and Tony are attracted to each other and Tony endeavors frantically to keep her love and save his inheritance by avoiding the discovery of Dudley's predicament, which he has agreed to assume. Yet he is unable to raise the money to quiet Lela. A newspaper article from New Haven describes the arrest of Tony Darling in company with Lela, leaving Tony branded and bringing his aunt upon the scene. Dorothy, previously warned against Tony, loses faith in him.

At Eleanor's home on the upper Hudson, she and Dudley conspire to desert Lela and prevent scandal until after the wedding, and while Eleanor still believes Tony the guilty one, she suggests that Dudley declare himself the culprit. Tony meanwhile promises Dorothy to clear up everything at 10 o'clock that night. At the same hour Lela has demanded to receive the money and Marie is to give her answer to Peter, whose proposal in Detroit years ago she is still considering.

Lela is summoned to Eleanor's home by Dorothy who wants to be a dancer and Dorothy disguised as Lela encounters Tony who upbraids her and discloses the true story of the trouble, and she is approached by her uncle who remembers Lela as another of his old sweethearts from the stage. As Lela, Dorothy extracts from him $1,000 to pay for her dancing lesson. Dorothy buys off Lela and Tony discloses the story of Marie and starts a romance between Peter and his aunt. When Dudley makes his pre-arranged confession, Tony qualifies for Dorothy's love and his inheritance, and there are to be three weddings and a general exodus home to Grand Rapids.

Neighbors.
 Occasionally a writer makes a blunder by a very simple device. He discovers his neighbors. Most of us live next door to people for years and visit with them on the front porch and once in a while call on them. But we rarely get really acquainted.
 And then a McCutcheon comes along or a Webster, or a Briggs, or a George Ade, or a Fatty Lewis and finds out that a neighbor is a human being. It is revealed that he gets peevish when the buttons aren't sewed on, and that his children have the croup, and that the baby keeps the family awake all night, and that in general he is a romantic character.
 It is possible that your own neighbors might be as interesting as those of the gentlemen just mentioned if you would take the pains to know them.—Kansas City Star.

Scolds Gagged With Iron.
 In the seventeenth century erring inhabitants of Newcastle used to undergo far more trying ordeals than that of the drunkard's cloak.
 Ralph Gardner in a work entitled "England's Grievance In Relation to the Coal Trade," published 1655, records having seen "in Newcastle six months ago one Ann Bridlestone drove through the streets by an officer, of the same corporation holding a rope in his hand, the other end fastened to an engine called the branks, which is like a crown, it being of iron, which was muzzled over the head and face, with a great gag of iron forced into her mouth, which forced the blood out, and that is the punishment which the magistrates do inflict upon chiding and scolding women."—London Express
