

Don't Worry About The Styles For Spring

See PRINTZESS And You'll Know The Styles Are Right

Many weeks ago we started getting information on the style that would be most popular this Spring. From every source of advance information we gathered hints of what would be worn. Then we interviewed representatives of many of the largest manufacturers in this country, we looked over the style they had developed--selected some from one, some from another, until now we can offer you the very cream of the season's showing. And so we say "Don't worry about the styles for Spring." Just step into our garment section, look around--pick as your fancy dictates, and you can be sure, whichever you select you are choosing wisely.

Three freight cars were damaged Saturday evening in a wreck in the east end of the Union Pacific yards when they were struck by train No. 9 shortly after seven o'clock. The wreck is supposed to have been caused by an open switch which threw the engine of the mail train off the main line striking the cars on a side track. Engineer W. S. Dolson and his fireman escaped without injury. The contents of the freight cars consisted of railroad ties and automobile supplies and they were scattered on the tracks. The wreckage was cleared away in a short time.

Eight contractors placed their bids before the committee and a definite decision has not yet been made. The contracts for the plumbing ranged from $5,200 to $6,600 and the wiring from $570.00 to $800. The contracts will be let at the next meeting which will be held this week.

Music in Shakespeare's Time.

Shakespeare's time was an age of music. "Catches" were sung by gentlemen as well as by weavers and tinkers. Lute, cithern or virginals were in every barber's shop for the diversion of customers. * * * Thomas Morley may be using the blessed argument of a music teacher when he tells us that a gentleman was counted but a boor if he could not play the lute or sing a part in a madrigal, but there is no getting over the crazy fact that over eighty collections of madrigals, ayres and songs were printed and published between 1587 and 1630, in addition to which vast collections of early music still remain in manuscript. With an aristocracy fond of music and accustomed to play and listen to music and song, music in the theater was almost as inevitable in England as in Italy, says the London Musical Record. It was considered a manly accomplishment to play the hunting horn. Every gentleman who kept hounds could wind it. A punctilious etiquette fixed the correct set of notes for each operation of the chase. Usually a play had at least one song.

Fish Exhibit Emotions.

We are accustomed to think that only we humans become pallid with fear or agitated with joy, but some experiments with perch in the artificial pond show that when their repose is suddenly disturbed by tapping on the glass the fish visibly tremble, and the bars which are characteristic of this species actually disappear for the time being, only to reappear when the disturbance is removed and the equilibrium of the fish is restored.

Sometimes a pike that is rapidly advancing on its prey becomes suspicious about the latter's character. The pursuer will suddenly stop in an attitude of doubt, his back will arch, and he will remain suspended, as though studying the cause of his suspicions. Only when he is thoroughly reassured does he become rigid, to advance to the final attack; if his suspicion is not allayed he drops to the bottom of the pond or swims off in disappointment. Popular Science Monthly.

Success.

"One night at Lady Jeanne's house Joseph Chamberlain said to me that he believed any man of even moderate endowment could attain any given aim which he set before him with unremitting effort and 'enduring to the end.' To my question, 'Why, then, do so many men fall short of their ambitions?' he answered: 'They come to the place where they turn back. They may have killed the dragon at the first bridge and at the second, perhaps even at the third. But the dragons are always more formidable the farther we go. Many turn back disheartened, and very few will meet the monsters to the end. Almost none is willing to have a try with the demon at the last bridge, but if he does he has won forever.'--Princess Lazarovich in Century.
