You may think I'm writing this for an advertisement, and maybe I'd send a copy to the manager he would take the hint and send one to the Courier. But I am not. It is simply because it would be a first class model for the new hotel Gering is soon to have, yet it is not so large—built on a lot not over fifty feet wide, inside at that, and I never saw a better arranged, neater, cleaner place. ## Garbage Service Begins Today.

The garbage collector starts out on his initial round today and will make the trip once a week. Only a small proportion of householders have so far provided themselves with cans, but the number is increasing daily.

Street Commissioner Salisbury said this morning that as he understood it, the deposits in the garbage receptacles must not include ashes, tin cans or like rubbish, but must be only the garbage that comes from the kitchen. If this is true, the collection will be very light, and in the case of small families the service will be nil, for the offal from the kitchen practically amounts to nothing and this is particularly true if chickens are kept.

The Tribune's idea of this garbage question is that everything that comes from a house during the summer should be deposited in the receptacles, whether it be ashes, tin cans, or old papers. Take for instance a can of corn; what would attract more flies than that empty can if thrown in a box or barrel or in a corner of the back lot?

We believe that as the people are paying for this service they have a right to demand that all garbage that comes from a house—but not from a stable—during the summer months be collected.

New York, N. Y.—The health-giving delights of long distance motoring and its educational advantages in teaching a knowledge of the country are going to be more appreciated than ever before during 1916, according to reports leading from all reliable sources. Automobile salesmen in particular are in a position to know the wants of the public in this regard and they say that they have been especially impressed by the demand for touring cars.

The thousands of tourist of 1915 who made the transcontinental trip over the Lincoln Highway have spread the word that roads are much improved and that it is now entirely possible to drive long distances without the discomforts of other days. Many who made the cross country drive last year mean to repeat it during the coming summer.

An aroused Americanism is also having its effect. The sentiment for preparedness has stirred a new patriotism throughout the country and many thinking men want to see, and want their families to see more of the country.
