OFFICER WAYMAN NARROWLY ESCAPES HIS DEATH

Joe Wayman, Union Pacific yard policeman, had a narrow escape from death last evening when he was struck by incoming train No. 5, and though his left arm was broken, he is no doubt thankful that he did not fare worse. As is his custom, Wayman boarded an east-bound freight to clear it of any hoboes that might be stealing a ride. Reaching the east end of the yard, he jumped off on the north side of the train, and failed to notice No. 5 approaching. He was struck on the shoulder by the buffer of the engine and thrown over against the moving freight train, and as he struck it he was bounced out toward No. 5 train, but fortunately fell between the two moving trains and clear of the wheels. That he was not thrown under the wheels bordered on a miracle.

SLIGHT CHANCES FOR AGREEMENT ON CANDIDATE

While conference committees from the Republican and Bull Moose conventions are attempting to get together on a candidate, the last word from Chicago indicated that the prospects for an agreement are slight, and that it is probable that each convention will place a candidate in the field. The Bull Moose delegates are almost unanimously in favor of Roosevelt's nomination, and it is generally conceded that the conference committee of that party will hold tenaciously for the Colonel. The Republican convention is not likely to consider Roosevelt as its nominee, and Hughes is certain to be nominated on the second or third ballot.

However, an attempt is being made to have both convention agree upon Root, but such a result is considered very doubtful. In the Bull Moose convention yesterday afternoon there was a three-hour struggle to prevent the radical delegates from rushing headlong into the nomination of Roosevelt as their standard bearer. The radicals were finally induced to agree to the appointment of a committee to confer with a like committee from the Republican convention in the hope of uniting on a candidate agreeable to both conventions.

The platforms submitted by the two conventions are practically the same, other than that the Bull Moose has a woman's suffrage plank while the Republican does not.

Should this conference committee fail to agree and each convention places a candidate in the field the reelection of President Wilson is assured.

Mabel Normand, in "My Valet," With Raymond Hitchcock, Triangle-Keystone Feature.

Mabel Normand has 11,000,000 friends, for there are 11,000,000 people attending the motion pictures in this country daily. All of them will be delighted to learn that the pleasant little comedienne has recovered her health after the recent accident to her in the Los Angeles studio, and that she will soon be making pictures again for Mr. Sennett's Triangle-Keystone combination.

Meantime there is the most lively interest in Miss Normand's first appearance in the Triangle plays, which for this city will take place at the Keith on Friday, June 9. The name of the vehicle is "My Valet," and it was a huge success in New York when played at two dollar prices with the other Triangle offerings at the Kuckebrock Theatre. Miss Normand's role in it is that of a girl who has been affianced to a boy since their infancy, although the girl and boy have never met.

Some idea of the humor of the situation can be imagined when it is stated that Raymond Hitchcock plays the affianced bachelor opposite Miss Normand's affianced girl. Of course they meet in the most romantic manner, Hitchcock saving Mabel's life during a runaway accident in the park, but neither knows who the other is.

Later that evening they learn the truth at the home of the girl's parents. But in the meantime Hitchcock has changed clothes with his valet, played by Mack Sennett, and there are a whole lot of embarrassing complications. Toward the close Miss Normand, persecuted by a French admirer, is washed into the Pacific ocean and half drowned. Again the noble Hitchcock effects a thrilling rescue.

Millions of film fans speaking myriad languages know Mabel Normand simply as Mabel. Her appearance on the Keystone screen is always hailed with shouts of joy. She is petite, graceful, an expert athlete and gifted with a rare sense of humor. It is said she has never been seen to better advantage than in this present offering. First show 7:30, second show 9:15. Main floor 10 and 15 cents, balcony 10 cents.
