MARIE HOAGLAND PASSES AWAY FRIDAY NIGHT

Miss Marie Hoagland, eldest daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Walter V. Hoagland, died shortly before midnight Friday at a local hospital.

The young girl was taken ill two weeks ago but did not consider the aid of a physician necessary although advised by relatives and friends to consult one. Having always enjoyed the best of health, her condition did not cause the relatives the anxiety which it would have brought forth under other conditions. On Sunday of last week a change came which necessitated her removal from her home to the hospital and an immediate operation. Several surgeons held a consultation and the operation was performed early the following day. It was found that in connection with appendicitis a large abscess had formed and the poison spread through her system. Her condition for several days was critical but hope was held on Thursday that she was gaining strength and relatives were greatly encouraged. Friday evening it was discovered that leakage of the heart had developed and at twenty minutes of twelve she passed away.

In the death of this young girl just entering into womanhood the bereaved parents mourn the loss of a dutiful, affectionate and talented daughter; her school mates an amiable, loyal friend, and the Presbyterian church one of its most faithful members of the choir and Sunday school. She was also a member of the domestic science club of that church and had been awarded highest honors in several contests which they held. She was born in this city August 5th, 1899, attended the local schools and was a member of the class of 1918, and held a position on the editorial staff of the school paper, the "Round Up."

The funeral service was held Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at the Presbyterian church, conducted by Rev. White, assisted by Dean Bowker. Friends present were greater in number than the seating capacity of both the auditorium and the Sunday school room combined. The white floral tributes were banked in great profusion in front of the choir railing. Music was furnished by a quartette composed of Mrs. Edwin Burke, Miss Salisbury, C. P. Clinton and Dr. Mitchell.

Pall bearers were Russell Langford, Lawrence Murrin, Harold Burke, Henry Iddings, Clarence McCabe and Ralph Coates.

Making a Scrap Book.

Mankind may be divided into two classes, those who preserve fugitive clippings and those who don't. Among the former are many who for lack of classification become victims of their own belongings. They clip assiduously, they lay aside newspapers containing articles they wish to keep for reference, and they postpone the task of sorting and arrangement to the rainy day or the interval of leisure which never arrives. Presently they are dismayed to find themselves confronted by a pile of ephemeral literature mountain high, wherein it seems hopeless even to blaze a trail. That is where the person of meticulous, orderly habits shows his irritating superiority. With him day unto day has uttered wisdom; he has tabulated and pigeonholed his stores as they came to his hand. It does not prove that you are literary and learned to raise a vast rubbish heap around yourself or to live in a ruin that suggests the visit of a Zeppelin. Those who keep scrapbooks are likely to reckon them among the most precious items in their libraries—Philadelphia Ledger.

Two Medical Men.

Some time ago during a performance Sir Herbert Tree had the misfortune to slip while going from his dressing room to the stage and injure his shoulder rather badly. He was in great pain, but pluckily determined to go through with his part, and just as he was about to make his entrance on the stage he whispered to some one in the wings: "Send for a doctor!" When the scene was over the doctor had not arrived, so Sir Herbert told one of the stage hands to go around to the front of the theater to see if he could find a medical man among the audience. Shortly afterward the stage hand returned, proudly and breathlessly, in company with two professional gentlemen. "One of them," says Sir Herbert sadly when he tells the story, "was a vet and the other was a dentist!"

Your Factory on the Farm

Modern factories are laid out so as to get the most work done with the least lost motion. The barn ought to be planned in the same way.

Back hauls and other faults in planning are expensive. They make the work more difficult and waste your time in the bargain.

The farm factory, also, should be large enough to take care of the produce from your fields. Many real estate men estimate the fertility of a farm by the size and appearance of the barn. They set the proper valuation accordingly.

Command our services when planning your new barn. We'll go the limit in helping you.
