CLYDE McMICHAEL RECEIVES CONTRACT FOR BUILDING

The contract for the erection of the Belton building on Dewey street south of the Odd Fellows' hall has been let to Clyde McMichael. The contract price is between $10,000 and $11,000, and the bid of Mr. McMichael was but sixty-four dollars below the next lowest bid.

The building will be faced with white enamel brick, which will present a very pretty appearance, and the arrangement of the entrance and the show windows will add to its beauty. The building will have a heating plant and will be strictly modern in all respects. Poulos Bros. have secured a lease for a term of years, and they will bear a part of the interior finishings on the first floor. As planned the finish will be exceptionally fine, making the most attractive business room in town.

The foundation of the building is now being constructed.

At Boarding School.

It was in the dining room of a certain boarding school for young ladies. The place had a reputation of giving pretty poor grub, and the girls never lost an opportunity to rap it one way or the other if the opportunity presented itself.

The other morning at breakfast Miss Jones, the most popular girl in the school, as well as the biggest joker, suddenly surprised everybody by remarking, "Oh, dear me, are we all here?"

"Why, certainly," replied the dignified matron. And she proceeded to count all the girls and call the roll. "Every one is here; no one is missing."

"Then I feel very much relieved," replied the sly one, with a wink at the other girls. "I see by the morning paper that a human skeleton was found in the outskirts of this city."

There was a chorus of giggles from the girls, and the matron indignantly rapped for order. —Cincinnati Tribune.

Liszt and Leipzig.

After young Felix Weingartner had finished his work at the Leipzig conservatory he went, as was the fashion at that time, to present himself to Franz Liszt at Weimar. Now, Leipzig, conservative in music then, as it is today, had never received the works of Franz Liszt with sufficient warmth to please him. In fact, Leipzig had shown itself quite unfriendly toward his compositions, and the great master of the piano resented it. Weingartner was presented.

"Charmed," said Liszt. "Where have you studied?"

"At Leipzig, meister," replied Weingartner.

"Leipzig, Leipzig?" said Liszt, as if he had difficulty in recalling the city, which, as a matter of fact, is only two or three hours away. "Oh, yes!" and the light of remembrance came into his eyes. "That's a fine place to take breakfast when you're on the way from here to Dresden."

Earliest School Books.

Among the discoveries in the archaeological excavations in ancient Babylonia are some stone tablets believed to have been used as schoolbooks in the first regular school ever held in the world. They are in the collection of the University of Pennsylvania.

These prehistoric text books have marks proving that they were used in a school conducted in a temple in Nippur more than 2,500 years B. C. This school is known to have been in existence at least 1,000 years, and no records have yet been found to indicate the existence of any preceding it. The tablets contain notes upon several sciences, evidently made upon the stone surface by a stylus. Several of them contain two forms of characters, indicating that the pupils attempted to copy the work of the teacher.

His Narrow Escape.

First Traveler—So you have returned from Africa? Have any narrow escapes?

Second Traveler—Only one—a regular prize winner, I should think.

First Traveler—Let me hear it.

Second Traveler—Well, I was chased by a big lion, and, having no cartridges left, I threw away my rifle and faced the brute. But as he sprang at me I caught him by the lower jaw with one hand and by the nose with the other. And there I stood and held his mouth wide open until he starved to death. A narrow escape, eh?—Exchange.

Ambiguous.

"Alice, if I told you that I loved you dearly, that there was no other girl in all the world for me, would you promise to be mine?"

"Would you mind telling me first whether that is a proposal or a hypothetical question?"—Florida Times-Union.

How Could He?

Aunt—You will never learn how to manage your money, Karl. Nephew—Can you wonder at it, auntie? My acquaintance with it is always so short. —Fliegende Blätter.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Bunions.
 Bunions are usually due to wearing shoes and stockings which are too short for the feet. The proper treatment of a bunion is to straighten the bones of the foot. This can be done by wearing loose shoes and stockings and by wearing a pad between the great toe and the next. Every night the feet should be soaked in water hot as can be borne for ten minutes, then, when dry, rubbed with a mixture of equal parts of turpentine and sweet oil. The pain in a bunion is greatly relieved by soaking the foot in a hot saturated solution of epsom salts. Sometimes when the condition of swelling and great enlargement of the toe has existed for a long time it is better to have a good surgeon operate upon the toe. It is well, however, to try home treatment for awhile before resorting to surgical measures.
