

Good Sight Does Not Mean Good Eyes.

Your sight may be good yet your eyes may be in the most urgent need of help.
 Ever see the big built, robust man, pause in his swinging strides along the street, clap a hand to his heart and drop dead? We have.
 He looked to be the healthiest man on the street, yet a tiny heart rivulet clogged and the machinery stopped, all because of a little exertion.
 If the little piece of glass optometrists place before your eye keeps the strain away, it may in a similar way postpone the advance of the more serious, "break-down" that comes to the human machine when overloaded or overworked.
 Because you see well is no valid reason for you to think you have good eyes.
 Often those who see best are in greatest need of optometry.
 The heart trouble that caused the big healthy man to drop dead may have come because defective eyes were taking more nerve force than nature intended, thereby weakening the stomach and possibly the heart action.
 Your eyes may be normal, or nearly so, probably are, but the wise course is to know, not guess, and you can only know the truth by an occasional visit to a reliable optometrist.

TWO GRAND OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN IN ONE FAMILY

Perhaps never in the history of fraternal orders in Nebraska has the selection of two grand officers gone to one family, as was the case last week when W. V. Hoagland, of this city, was elected Grand Master of the Nebraska Odd Fellows and Mrs. Hoagland elected president of the Rebekah degree. Both received the office automatically, for last year each held the second highest office in the respective orders.

To be the head of an organization composed of 25,000 representative men of Nebraska is an honor; and equally honorable is the presidency of the Rebekahs, with a membership of 16,000 in the state. We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Hoagland that their work in these great organizations has been such as to merit the distinction that they now enjoy.
