COLONEL HARVEY'S ESTIMATE OF THE ELECTORAL VOTE.

Four years ago Colonel George Harvey guessed wrong as to only one state in his election forecast. In 1908 he was only seventeen electoral votes out of the way, and in 1904 only twenty-two. In April of the present year before a single state had indicated a preference for the nominee, he closed an analysis of the political situation, under the heading, "Nobody for Hughes but the People," with the positive prediction that "Rightly or wrongly, wisely or not, the will of the people will prevail and Charles Evans Hughes will be the next republican candidate for president of the United States." In the North American Review published yesterday, Colonel Harvey predicts the election of Hughes as certain.

He predicts that Hughes will carry California, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington and Wyoming. These twenty-three states have 269 electoral votes, or three more than necessary to elect.

He expects that Hughes will carry Indiana and Wisconsin, the former with 15 and the latter with 13 votes, and he believes that Hughes will also carry Delaware with 3 votes, Ohio with 24 and Maryland with 8.

The thirteen southern states, with a vote of 149, are given to Wilson, and the states classed as doubtful are Arizona, Colorado, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada and West Virginia. These doubtful states cast 50 votes.

In order to be elected, Wilson will need carry the thirteen southern states, the seven doubtful states, Indiana, Wisconsin Delaware, Ohio, Maryland, and either North Dakota, South Dakota, Oregon, or Utah.

Hughes can afford to lose Illinois if he can win in Ohio and Delaware, or he can lose New Jersey if he wins in Indiana.

In studying the possible vote, the chances of Hughes election appear to be twenty-five per cent better than Wilson.

The Boy and the Lamb.

North Platte, Nebr.,
 October 27, 1916.

Mr. Editor: When I heard Senator Hitchcock is closing his North Platte speech, use these words, "Of course you will vote for your townsman, without regard to former party affiliations, and then when you are voting for him, you ought to vote for the whole ticket, as it is not worth while to scratch a single man." I was reminded of the story of the half-witted boy, and his older brother.

The father had died and left the boy a flock of sheep. In the flock was a fine pet lamb to which the younger brother had become very much attached. A dispute arose between the brothers in regard to the best manner of handling the flock; it was decided to divide the sheep into two flocks, and the younger brother was to have the first choice. The older brother attended to the division, and placed all of the scabby and inferior sheep into one division, but put the pet lamb with them; thinking of course, that his half-witted brother would choose the flock with the pet lamb.

The younger brother saw his pet lamb which he desired so much, but he noted the scabby and inferior sheep he was with; he put his arms around the lamb's neck and said, "I have loved you since the spring morning I found you by the side of your dead mother; it is hard to part with you, but you are with the scabby bunch and unless you jump over the corral fence and get away I shall have to give you up."

KNEW HOW TO HANDLE MULES

Drivers in the Civil War Had Their Own Methods, and They Were Eminently Successful.

The wagons were generally drawn by four mules driven by negroes, who rode the high wheeler and managed the team by a jerk line to the high leader. In these days it may seem like a shiftless way to drive a team, but it worked well, and possibly because the darkies and the mules, through some medium or other, understood each other perfectly; at any rate the drivers talked to their teams as if they comprehended every word said to them. And sometimes it was worth listening to, when the roads were bad and some of the wagons ahead of them were stuck in the mud. "Calline" (Carolins, the high leader), giving her an awakening jerk of the line, "stop dreamin' with dem y'ears of yourn." "Jer'miah (Jeremiah, the off-wheeler), "you'll think the insex is bit'n you if you don't put dem sholdahs agin dat collah." "Dan'l (Daniel, the wheeler he is on), giving him a sharp dig in the ribs with his boot heels, the road getting heavier every minute, "no foolin', you old haddened sinnah!" "Member, Mrs. N'nias" (Mrs. Ananias, off leader), reaching for her left hip with the tip of his black snake, "if dis yere wagon sticks in dat hole ahead o' you, you'll wish you'd down in dat grave longside dat lie'n husband o' yourn." And, on reaching the worst place in the road, yelling "Yep! Yah!" loud enough to be heard half way from Washington to Baltimore, every prophet and lady mule in the team knew what to expect if the wagon stuck, and generally the faithful creatures pulled it through.—Morris Schaff, in the Atlantic.

MAY DRAW HEAT FROM EARTH

Scientists Have Seriously Proposed Deep Borings by Means of Which It Can Be Obtained.

As we go downward into the earth we find a steady increase of temperature. So marked is this increase that it has been seriously proposed to make very deep borings in order to obtain supplies of warm water for heating our towns.

Arago and Walferdin suggested this method for supplying warmth to the Jardin des Plantes in Paris; and now that such important improvements have been made in carrying borings to enormous depths the time may not be far distant when we shall draw extensively upon these supplies of "submarine" heat.

The city of Budapest is extensively supplied with hot water from an underground source. It may be well to remember that in the event of our coal supply failing we have these inexhaustible supplies of heat everywhere beneath our feet.

Invitation to Enter.

"The latch string hangs out," signifies hospitality and is a standing invitation for a person to visit. In early times Indiana pioneers lived in log cabins built of round logs, notched near the ends, to make them lie closely together. Openings for doors and windows were made by sawing out holes after the logs were laid. The doors were of puncheons or rough slabs fastened together with wooden pins. Nails were expensive and little used. The door latch was a wooden catch or kind of trigger which, when the door was closed, fell into a little groove and could be opened from the outside by pulling a string, one end of which was fastened to the latch and the other, passing through a hole in the door above the latch, hung outside, so the latch could be raised by pulling the string. To lock the door the string was pulled inside. Hence the expression, "the latch string hangs outside," meant an invitation to come in.

Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n.

OF NORTH PLATTE, NEBRASKA.
ASSETS $840,000.00

To Prospective Building & Loan Borrowers:

Non-resident Building & Loan Companies are advertising the fact that they have reduced the monthly payments of borrowers to $1.10 per month on each $100.00 borrowed, making the monthly payment the same as the Mutual Building & Loan Association of North Platte. They fail to state that of the $1.10 paid to the non-resident company, there is only thirty-five cents credited as a principal payment, the balance seventy-five cents being taken for interest. Of the $1.10 monthly payment to this association on each $100.00 borrowed sixty cents is for interest and fifty cents is credited as a principal payment.

This difference in the amount credited the borrower will result in the borrower in the non-resident company being compelled to pay not less than $25.00 more on each $100.00 borrowed in order to discharge the debt than they would if they were doing the business with this Association.

Judge Fawcett was born in Wisconsin. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in Galena, Ill. In 1908 he was appointed Judge of the Supreme Court by Governor Sheldon to serve until the general election in 1909, at which time he was elected for a full term, which he is now completing. Four years ago he was elected by his associates as acting Chief Justice, and in that capacity has at all times presided in the absence of the Chief Justice. On the death of Judge Hollenbeck, in 1915, his associates joined in a written request to the governor for his appointment as Chief Justice.
