Agriculture in the Future

Nations now at war will not forever engage in fighting, and even with the armies in the field, economists and politicians at home are planning against the day when the noise and the gas and all the elements of destruction will be hushed and done away with. In Canada a genuine boom in agriculture is anticipated after the war, and the government of the Dominion, as well as of the several provinces, is making plans against the time. In New Brunswick, for example, the lands that will be available for settlement are being surveyed and divided on an established plan, with an eye to the needs of the farmers and the farm communities of the future. The general scheme is one that will be found attractive, especially by men of small means, who are seeking in agriculture an opportunity for employment, and the future of Canadian farming may be in some way affected by it.

Of more immediate interest to the American farmer, perhaps, is the future of Russia. The wheat fields of lower Russia have long been the principal rivals of the United States, even with the restrictions forced on Russian commerce by England and Germany. It is not improbable that the more impressive of these restrictions will be removed as one of the results of the war. This, with modern methods of farming, will bring Russia into the European field on better terms than ever. Still more significant is the fact that for at least a decade western Siberia has been undergoing a transformation that is not generally understood by the world outside. For ten years at least immigration to Siberia has been around 300,000 a year, the settlers for the most part taking up agriculture. The Russian government has quietly encouraged this movement, as well as the establishing of the farmers on a basis of content. Great expansion in this region is looked for when peace comes.

These and other similar movements affect the American farmer in that, as production increases elsewhere, his market is cut off. In general, the progress of agriculture in the remote regions of the world is interesting, because it meets the proposition that consumption has been overtaking production at a rate that boded ill for the future. It will be long time before the world goes hungry because it cannot produce enough to feed all.—Omaha Bee.

Governor-Elect Neville Balks

Governor-elect Neville returned Sunday night from a visit in Lincoln and Omaha. In speaking of his visit to the state capital the Journal says: Governor-elect Keith Neville was in Lincoln Saturday getting a line on his new duties. Considerable pressure is being brought to bear upon Neville to induce him to pursue a policy of "over-enforcement" of the prohibition law so as to make it offensive enough to people to justify the wets in securing re-submission.

A Lincoln democrat who talked to Mr. Neville about the matter says that the new governor has informed each of these would-be advisers who think they have a right to help guide his policy that he will do nothing of the kind, but that on the contrary he will put the whole matter up to the men most responsible for the adoption of the amendment, the officers of the dry federation, and will urge the adoption of whatever laws they deem wise and necessary.

Governor-elect Neville has made the same statement in North Platte, and is evidence right at the start that his acts as governor will not be at the suggestion or command of any clique of men; that he will be the real governor in fact as well as name.

One Saloon Man Wins

W. A. Schoeneck, a saloon-keeper of Snyder, bet with Fritz Klintworth, a farmer, that in the event of the state going dry Klintworth would deliver to the saloon-keeper, from May 1, 1917 to May 1, 1918, five pounds of butter, five dozen eggs, and a bushel of potatoes, each week and a load of cobs each month. If the state went wet Schoeneck was to deliver to the farmer, a case of beer, quart of whiskey and a box of cigars each week for the same length of time. As the amendment carried, the high cost of living will have no terrors for Schoeneck.

Sandwiches Go Up

Chicago, Nov. 19.—The price of all 5-cent sandwiches was advanced to 10 cents in a string of popular-priced restaurants here today, and a candy manufacturer who operates a confectionery store in many cities announced ice cream sodas henceforth would be 15 cents instead of 10. Increase in the price of sugar and eggs was the reason given for the latter.

At the suggestion of the golf players Weather Observer Shilling gave us a brand of weather Sunday which was all that could be desired. That the golfers took advantage of it was evidenced by the large number on the links both forenoon and afternoon. At one time there were about thirty men and women clouting the ball.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS.

The Wilson avalanche which struck Nebraska November 7th carried into can on the state ticket. For a time it was thought State Supt. Thomas was safe, but later returns gave the office to his opponent.

Three packages of $10,000 each of sure-enough money are hung up in the will of Mrs. Marie Zinser of New York for her three granddaughters. The packages are theirs at 21, provided they prove to the satisfaction of a committee of women that they can cook an acceptable meal for twelve persons. Say, girls, isn't that an easy one?

Statewide prohibition is marching on and has added four more important states to the dry column. Somewhat anomalous is the fact that recent recruits are not prohibition teetotalers but mostly liberal minded citizens who have reached the conclusion that the licensed drinking place—the saloon—must be abolished for the good of society and the welfare of the state.

A committee of the Chicago city council dipped into the rising cost of living far enough to find strong evidence of conspiracy, collusion and holdup among provision dealers. City inspectors report at least 32,000,000 eggs in storage companies, who dole out the goods to retailers as they see fit and fix the price as greed dictates. The council committee formally requests the United States attorney to put the grand jury on the trail of this and other food corners.

Work will start soon on a new Union Pacific freight depot at Gering. Some of the material for same being already on the ground. The new structure will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000, we understand, and will be a fine structure. The building will be located just east of the present structure, and will be 60x100 feet in size, with a 100 foot addition. Freight business at Gering has more than quadrupled during the past year owing to the influx of business caused by the building of the new sugar factory.

English newspapers that hail Wilson's election as an augury for peace may be right. England may continue to rape U. S. mails and steal our trade secrets with impunity. War will not follow and England will not need to desert or back down. War with Mexico may continue, but it bids fair to be a peaceful war unless the president (heretofore too proud to fight) goes in and cleans out the greasers. Also, says a London newspaper, Wilson may be interested personally in an "Anglo-American entente", if any one can tell what that implies, but which doubtless means that the intent is a double advantage for England after the war.—Kearney Hub.

Why Not Be Friendly?
Less than a third of the people in the average American neighborhood are natives. In thousands of cases practically all the population was born elsewhere. So why stand off when some one moves in from another section? Why be biggishly with neighborliness? Of course one may make an occasional mistake, but for every undesirable acquaintance we find several good people worth knowing. You, your neighbor and the newcomer are problems of your community, and as each of you may be the other two the problem ought to be simple.

If you are an older resident greet the newcomer. There is a double blessing in a welcome. In giving you get.

If you are the newcomer—well, your duty was never better stated than in these words of Ruskin:

"It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in any place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness or speaking a true word or making a friend."

The way to fill the lonesome hours is to be friendly.—Country Gentleman.

Artificial Ears.

Artificial ears are so skillfully made that they may with difficulty be distinguished from natural ones, so it is claimed.

When the person who has lost an ear applies to the manufacturer for a substitute there is made a mold of the remaining ear. If there be left any part of the other a mold of that part also must be taken to assist in the fitting of the artificial. Manufacturers assert that no two ears are alike and that it takes a skillful workman to prepare an ear from the mold or molds.

When finished the new ear is pasted on the stump or simply set in the position of the lost ear. It is really only the first artificial ear that is expensive, the chief cost pertaining to the making of the mold. Vulcanized rubber, which can be bent and twisted, has been found to constitute the best material for the making of artificial ears.—Detroit Free Press.

A Question of Size.

If old Garge Jones was the most inquisitive man in the village, Tom Morton was certainly the surliest.

One afternoon, as Garge perambulated slowly along the one narrow street, he paused at Tom's garden fence and gazed inquiringly over at Tom, who was busily nailing a very large box together.

"Afternoon, Tom!" said the old chap generally. "Whatever be 'ee puttin' that great box together for?"

Tom paused in his hammering long enough to retort curtly:

"To hold all your questions, if so be as it's big enough!"

Garge eyed him in pained silence for a few moments. Then he took an empty matchbox from his pocket and threw it over to Sandy.

"Then that'll do for yer civil answers if so be as it's small enough!" he retorted quietly.—London Express.
