A Deficit Exists.

The semi-centennial celebration closed Saturday evening and at the termination the officers were forced to the conclusion that the celebration had been given at an outlay considerably greater than the receipts. It was figured that the receipts from the grand stand and bleachers together with the percentage and rents from the concessionaires would meet the expenses, but the revenues from these sources were insufficient. The storm Wednesday night resulted in a loss of probably one thousand dollars in grand stand fees and per centages from concessionaires. Had a small admission fee to the park been charged, the celebration would have paid out. The amount of the deficit has not been as yet ascertained, as it will require several days to audit the accounts, and the members of the holding company will then go down in their pockets and pay the deficiency.

Fles Suit for Damages

Hans P. Larsen, who lives seven miles south of town, through his attorney W. E. Shuman, has filed a damage suit for three thousand dollars against C. I. Lemsa, who lives on the south edge of town. The suit is the result of an auto collision which occurred May 20th in the south part of town when cars driven by the two men came together. In this smash-up Larsen's knee was dislocated, his wife injured, his boy suffered a broken rib and his daughter a fractured leg. For medical service, hospital fees, loss of work and mental anguish the above amount is asked.

At the time of the accident Lewis claimed that two boys with fish spears were in the road ahead of him, that they would not get out of the way, and in order to avoid striking them turned out and failing to see the Larsen car run into it.

Marie Horgan as "Buttercup"

New York and Philadelphia folks pack the theatres every night of Marie Horgan's appearance in those cities. The Chautauqua has earned for itself great credit in securing such a wonderful player and singer to take the part of "Little Buttercup" in the mammoth production of "Pinafore" to be given at the local Chautauqua this season. The production of such a play with the same principals who took the parts in the largest cities of the country, is a distinct revelation in Chautauqua circles. The orchestra, the chorus, the scenery and lighting effects are to be brought here with the same regard for details as with the stage production.

HENRY SULLIVAN DROWNS WHILE BATHING IN RIVER

Henry Sullivan, of this city, was drowned early Saturday morning while bathing in the North Platte river a short distance south of the Lincoln Highway bridge. Henry, in company with Ed Yates, Henry Simon and Lee Dobbins had been at the celebration grounds, and near midnight one of them proposed that they drive in the Yates car to the bridge. Arriving there, Sullivan, Yates and Simon concluded to go in bathing and selected a spot a short distance below the bridge where the water—as later found—was sixteen feet deep with a swiftly flowing current. Dobbins remaining in the car. After they had been in the water ten or fifteen minutes Yates noticed that Sullivan, who was well out in the stream, seemed to be struggling as though drowning. He immediately swam out to him and grasping him by the wrist attempted to tow him to shore, when Sullivan clung to Yates so tightly that the latter could not use his arms. The two men struggled for several minutes when Yates succeeded in freeing himself and started for shore, and had not Simon at this time came to his rescue he as well as Sullivan would have met a watery grave. After landing Yates, it was some little time before Simon could fully resuscitate him.

Word was at once brought to town and a searching party started out about three o'clock in the morning, but it was not until nearly noon that the body was discovered lodged against a sand bar well out in the river at a point about a mile below the Blankenburg ranch. The party making the discovery was Homer Musselman and Rob Sullivan. With the assistance of others the body was brought to shore, Sheriff Salisbury and Undertaker Maloney were notified, and the remains brought to the Maloney morgue.

The funeral will be held from the family residence at 2:30 this afternoon.

The deceased, the son of P. H. Sullivan, was born in this city January 11, 1878, and had always made his home here. He had a wide acquaintance in the county and city which he had largely gained by his pleasant manners and open heartedness. He was particularly attached to the members of the family, and to them his sudden passing away came as a prostrating shock. He is survived by the father, four sisters and two brothers.

Salt and Toothbrushes.

Our dentist tells us a very interesting thing. Ordinary salt is one of the best methods for sterilizing toothbrushes that are known. But not only because it sterilizes it is so excellent, but because it has the effect of softening the bristles and making them expand in a way. One of the troubles so frequently met with is that the bristles come out and are swallowed, causing appendicitis. The salt causes the bristles to swell and so remain in the brush. This may be but another of the several million theories. It is important, however, that bristles do cause appendicitis.—New York Globe.

Substitute For Tobacco.

Throughout the tropical orient the natives employ a substitute for tobacco consisting of a slice of areca palm nut, wrapped in betel leaf, flavored with a fine lime made of native sea shells and colored with carmine. The habit is universal, especially with the women, and sellers of "betel nut" may be seen on many of the street corners in Saigon and other cities of Indo-China.
