It is really not a stretch of imagination to call this material "concrete lumber" for ther eason that the concrete is being prepared in slabs, some of them 3 by 6 feet and others 3 by 15 feet in size. But with the exception of a reinorced rim around the edge, these slabs are only 2 or 21/2 inches thick. The slabs will be fastened to the frame work in much the same way that lumber is attached to stud-

This is the first time in the history of American railroading that material of this character has been used for snow sheds and it is being watched with much interest. -11011
