AUTO DRIVER TAKES TO ROADBED, AVERTS ACCIDENT

A Burlington engineer running out of Lincoln relates this incident:

"We were drifting down a rather long grade," he says, "pulling a passenger train. Approaching a crossing I saw an automobile dash out of the weeds that hid a country road. I was so near it that I could not stop altho I did what I could to slacken speed. The auto driver was so near that he saw he could neither stop nor make the crossing. With rare presence of mind he whirled his machine down the track ahead. He was going about as fast as he could safely make the turn. With one wheel between the rails and the other outside near the ends of the ties, he sped along ahead of me, gaining at every turn of the wheels. He kept up his speed and of course I shut down pretty well. He gained the next road crossing ahead of me, whirled off the track to the road, and was almost out of sight when I got to the road crossing. He was driving a big, powerful car, and that made it possible for him to get away. And on the grade he couldn't get off until the next grade crossing was reached."

Licenses and Weddings

Wednesday Judge French united in marriage Jesse Kessler of this city and Helen Tatman of Stapleton. On the same day he issued a license to wed to Walter V. Woodruff and Mattilda Anderson, both of Cozad.

Yesterday the Judge issued a license to Albin Erickson and Ilo Ferrell, both of Wallace, and later united in marriage Guy C. James and Helen Morrison, both of Cozad.

Judge French up to last evening had issued twenty-nine marriage licenses during September, and united ninety couples in marriage. This is considered a pretty fair month's work in the matrimonial line, although The Tribune knows of at least twenty North Platte girls who would have been married this month if the Judge had just stepped outside his official duties and supplied the young men.

The remains of an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Halligan that died in Omaha twenty years ago was disinterred and brought to this city for reinterment this morning.
