

You must buy the soldier's gift early

Will you send a Christmas present to a boy with the colors across seas? If he gets it on time, you will buy it early. Early means—"right now". If your present is not started on its way within the next few days, it is not going to get there by Christmas.

What does the soldier want?

There will be extraordinary sentiment attached to the Christmas present the soldier receives. It should be something of permanent value, and yet it must be something he can carry on his person or in his kit.

More Homes Quarantined

Six more houses have been quarantined for small pox, three Wednesday and three yesterday. Five of the houses are north of the track, the other south. One of the houses eight members of the family are afflicted. Two cases, both adults, have assumed a virulent form.

Men for Navy Wanted

Ensign F. G. Condit, stationed at Omaha as recruiting officer for the navy, writes The Tribune that 200 firemen for the navy are wanted from this state, and they are wanted awfully bad. And not only firemen are needed, but 100,000 seamen. Why don't more of our young men enlist in the navy.

Entertain at Conservation Dinner

Mrs. J. G. Beeler assisted by Mrs. E. S. Davis, Mrs. M. E. Scott, Mrs. J. S. Twine, Mrs. H. M. Grimes and Mrs. M. E. Crosby, entertained the members of P. E. O. and their husbands at a "conservation dinner" at the home of Mrs. M. E. Scott. The dinner was given complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Cary, of Missoula, Mont. The hostesses proved that a "conservation dinner" could be a decided success.

Two More Boys Leave

Jay Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Smith, and Victor Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Anderson, left at noon yesterday for Omaha where they will enlist in the service of their country. They will make application for the aviation corps, but if they fail in this they will enlist in the navy. During the past year the two boys have been farming on the J. I. Smith place southwest of town. They were also school chums and they hope to keep together in the federal service.

Ross is Satisfied.

Writing to John Noble from Camp Funston, Amos Ross, one of Lincoln county's drafted men says: "I have a good job now, as I have been appointed mechanic, and get good wages. I am not compelled to drill, and have a good place to stay with plenty to eat. I am feeling fine and like army life much better than I thought I would. I expect to apply for a furlough to go home for Thanksgiving and visit with all my friends in North Platte, but whether they will grant me such I do not yet know."

Loan of Relics Asked

The D. A. R. earnestly solicits the loan of any relics you may have that date back to the civil war times and earlier, for their "Relic Exhibit" to be held at the home of Mrs. T. C. Patterson November 22, 23 and 24. Please notify any of the committee, Mrs. Field, Mrs. Spencer or Mrs. York Hinman and they will gladly get them. Some very interesting things have already been promised, such as old coins, books, letters, silver, pictures, clothing and letters. Please help this exhibit if you can as North Platte has never had anything like this and it will be instructive and educational. Saturday will be children's day. Colonial ladies will serve colonial tea afternoons and evenings.

Joe Souders Weds Miss Anderson

Joe Souders, brother of county treasurer Sam Souders, and a member of the A. N. Durbin Auto Co., was married early Wednesday morning to Miss Amelia Anderson, whose parents reside on a farm west of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hull at his home, a cafe wedding breakfast was served and the couple left on No. 16 on a wedding trip to Omaha. The wedding was kept a secret until the day before, even then only the relatives of the contracting parties were advised, and these relatives were the only people present at the ceremony.

Mr. Souders is a splendid young business man of exemplary habits, and his bride is a young lady highly esteemed by all acquaintances.

SILLY WORSHIP OF WEALTH

General Tendency to Gloat Over Sight and Sound of Money Something Hard to Understand.

The tendency to gloat over the sight and sound of money may be less pervasive than it seems. It may be only a temporary predisposition, leaving us at heart clean, wise, and temperate. But there is a florid exuberance in the handling of this recurrent theme which nauseates us a little, like very rich food eaten in a close room, writes Agnes Repplier in the Atlantic. Why should we be told that "the world gapes in wonder" as it contemplates "an Aladdin romance of steel and gold?" The world has other things to gaze over in these sorrowful days. "Once a barefoot boy now riding in a $100,000 private car." There is a headline to catch the public eye, and make the public tongue hang watering from its mouth. That car, "early Pullman and the late German Lloyd," is to the American reader what the 2,000 black slaves with jars of jewels upon their heads were to Dick Swiveler—a vision of tasteful opulence. More intimate journalists tell us that a "Financial Potentate" eats baked potatoes for his luncheon, and gives his friends notebooks with a moral axiom on each page. We cannot really care what this unknown gentleman eats. We cannot, under any conceivable circumstance, covet a moral notebook. Yet such items of information would not be painstakingly acquired unless they afforded some mysterious gratification to their readers.

WHEN YALE COLLEGE MOVED

Village of Saybrook, Where It Was First Located, Bitterly Fought for Its Retention.

During our walk we came upon a bowlder in the middle of a field inland with a bronze plate which told us that there was the original site of Yale college. Saybrook did not see the college go to New Haven without a struggle, and one of its incidents is quaint to recall—the famous battle of the college books. In December, 1718, the trustees, already migrated to New Haven, desired to remove the college library, which had been left behind in Saybrook. But Saybrook refused to give it up, and so stubbornly that the governor and council had to come down from Hartford and set the sheriff and his assistants to work. These, however, found the house in which the books were kept barred and guarded by "resolute men," and even after the sheriff had broken in and placed a guard over the books the book-lovers of Saybrook did not yet give in. On the morrow it was found that the carts that were to transport the books had been disabled, and when others were procured and a start finally made, it was found that even the bridges along the road had been destroyed in advance of them! When before or since has a village shown such a furious passion for learning!—Richard Le Gallienne in Harper's Magazine.

$16.00 Minimum for Hogs

The immediate fixing of a minimum price of hogs of $16 per hundred pounds has been asked in the report of a commission appointed by the United States food administration to investigate the cost of producing swine. The commission reports that the equivalent value of 13.3 bushels of corn for 100 pounds of average hogs must be established to get a stimulative market and that the ratio of 14.3 bushels of corn to 100 pounds of hogs must be decided upon to raise production to 15 per cent above normal.

SELF STARTING REMINGTON TYPEWRITER

This new invention permits your typist to keep her eyes on her copy. The machine doesn't have to be looked at, or the scale watched. The time saving is automatic. There is no other typewriter like this. Fully protected by Remington patents.

The Self Starter, while adding to speed, adds nothing to the cost of the typewriter. It is part of the machine.

Try the time saver on your own letters. We are constantly making demonstrations throughout the city—they involve no obligation on your part. Shall we put you on the list? Write or phone us. Descriptive folders also mailed on request.
