

Santa Claus Is Coming

OLD Santa Claus is coming—
The time is very near—
Before we realize it
Old Santa will be here.

He'll bring us sleds and wagons,
And nuts and sugar plums,
And dolls, and furs, and dresses,
And balls, and swords, and drums.

He'll come when we are sleeping,
Tucked in our beds so white,
And all the stars are peeping
At this, our Christmas night.

He'll come with smiles and blessings
Along the milky way,
And stop at every dwelling
Where little children stay.

He'll garnish trees with presents
And, while the world is still,
With gifts the children asked for
Each stocking he will fill.

But, better than all presents,
He'll bring to us again
The heartfelt Christmas wishes
Of "Good will unto men."
—Martha Coleman Sherman in Chicago Inter Ocean.

His Gift to Santa Claus

EDWARD was seven years old and believed, of course, in Santa Claus. Just before Christmas he had proudly written a letter (his first), stating the particular gifts he wanted, and after his mother had read it it was carefully put into the fire.

"Now," said Edward's mother cheerfully, "that letter will go right up the chimney and direct to Santa Claus."

Edward seemed very much impressed.

Christmas morning the child was perfectly delighted with the shower of gifts and with the glittering tree.

"Wasn't it good of Santa Claus to bring me so many more things than I asked for in my letter?" he said at the breakfast table, clasping his hands in an ecstasy. After this outburst he grew thoughtful, then, suddenly jumping up, disappeared into the kitchen.

His mother and father looked at each other and wondered. Then the mother followed to see what the inspiration might be.

She found Edward standing in front of the kitchen stove pouring out a cup of coffee.

"Why, Edward, dear, what are you doing?" his mother asked, coffee being one of the child's "forbidden things."

Edward looked up appealingly. "It is such a cold morning, mother—"

"But, Edward, you know I never permit you to take coffee!" his mother interrupted.

"No, no, mother; I do not wish to drink it. I want to give it to Santa Claus. He was so kind to send me more engines and things than I asked for. May I give him some coffee and rolls, mother—may I?"

Before his mother had time to think of a suitable reply the child had put cream and sugar into the cup; then, with his little face all aglow with appreciation and gratitude, he earnestly poured the steaming coffee into the fire.

"There now!" he exclaimed, with satisfaction. "That will go right up the chimney and direct to Santa Claus, won't it? And it will warm up his little round belly."

That shook when he laugh'd like
A bowl full of jelly—
won't it mother?—Lippincott's.

Don't Say These Old Things at Christmas

DEAR me! It's a lucky thing Christmas comes only once a year. I don't know what we'd do if it came oftener.

It isn't so much the value of a present as the spirit in which it is given.

I hang my stockings up just to please the children. I dread telling them there's no Santa Claus. Let some one else do that.

It never seems like Christmas to me unless it snows.

I always try to give sensible gifts—something useful, that will be a reminder all the year.

Money is always such an acceptable present. There isn't one of us who has so much that he can't take a little more.

Don't you pity the poor at this time of the year? I do.

Christmas and New Year's come so close together. It's too bad they could not be separated a little. Two holidays coming right on top of each other that way make it so hard, but then the children enjoy it.

I never know what to give father. It's so hard to think of anything for a man. And my rich friends—they have everything already.—Puck.

Christmas Chimes.
Ring out, ring out, O Christmas bells,
Across the starlit, frosty night,
Proclaim the message of good will,
The story of the Prince of Light.

The centuries roll on and on,
And yet, returning Christmas time
Awakes in each responsive heart
Remembrance of the love sublime.

Then keep the feast with hearty cheer,
The feast of merry Christmas-time,
While faith and hope and love, these
Within the heart of each abide.
—W. G. Park in Good Housekeeping.

Good King Wenceslas

A Christmas Carol of Long Ago

GOOD King Wenceslas looked out
On the feast of Stephen,
And the snow lay round about,
Deep and crisp and even.

Brightly shone the moon that night,
Though the frost was cruel;
When a poor man came in sight
Gath'ring winter fuel.

First Singer:
"Hither, page, come stand by me,
If thou know'st it, telling
Yonder peasant, who is he?
Where and what his dwelling?"

Second Singer:
"Sire, he lives a good league hence,
Down beneath the mountain,
Close against the forest fence
By St. Agnes' fountain."

First Singer:
"Bring me flesh and bring me wine,
Bring me pine logs hither;
Thou and I, we'll see him dine
When we bear them thither."

Second Singer:
"Sire, the night is darker now,
And the storm grows wilder,
Fails my heart, I know not how
I can go on longer."

First Singer:
"Mark my steps, be brave, my page;
Tread thou in them boldly;
Then thou'll find the winter's rage
Erease thy blood less coldly."

Page and monarch on they went,
On they went together,
Through the rude wind's wild lament,
Through the bitter weather.

In his master's steps he trod,
Where the snow lay dented;
That was in the very sod
Which his foot had printed.

Therefore, Christian men, be sure,
Wealth or rank possessing,
Ye who now do bless the poor
Shall yourselves find blessing.

One Historic Christmastide.
The crusades had a wonderful influence upon the literary taste as well as the national manners and festivities of Christmastide.

It was at the Christmas festival of 1214 that the barons demanded from King John the document which was the foundation of English liberties is known by the name of Magna Charta.

John's tyranny had become intolerable, and the hopes of the people hung on the fortunes of the French campaign, in which he was then engaged. After his defeat and return to England the barons met secretly and swore to demand the restoration of their liberties by charter under the king's seal. Having agreed to assemble for this purpose at Christmas, they separated. On the feast of the Epiphany the barons asked of the king his confirmation of the laws of Edward the Confessor and Henry I. John met the barons with an absolute refusal, but, finding them firm, pleaded for time to consider. This was granted, and in 1215, knowing it to be inevitable, he called the barons to Runnymede and there signed the great charter.

Writing in Everybody's, Maude Radford Warren enumerates some amusing incidents showing the effects of limited war prohibition in England. One evening the author witnessed the following race against time that was staged near Victoria station, London, at an hour when traffic is thickest:

"Presently a shouting and cursing arose at the center of the intersecting streets. People turned, peering and gaping. Streaking straight through the traffic, regardless of thundering trucks and sliding cabs and obstructing pedestrians, came a Scotchman. His eyes were glassy and staring; his knees were flying; his knees were twinkling. On he came, straight for the public house. If he could get a hand on a glass of his national vodka by 9:25½, he was saved. Would he make it? A group of ribald Americans cheered him on, yelling at him in race track fashion. His fellow Scotchmen silently made way for him, and some of them even pushed people out of his path. But they did not cheer; it was a matter too deep for sounds. On came Sandy; panting, glaring, he leaped through the door, and a sympathizer from over the seas who followed him reported that 9:25½ he had a strong Highland paw curled around three fingers of Scotch. The early closing law, thanks to good sprinting, had been respected—but nevertheless, the trench had been taken and the day saved."

Petrograd—Germany is apparently permitted, under the armistice arrangement, to transfer her troops as she desires, from the Russian to any other fighting fronts. She is at liberty to use them against the allies as far as the agreement made with Russia is concerned, there being nothing in the agreement published that would indicate the contrary. It is known that great numbers of the troops have already been moved to other fighting fronts.

Christmas Song
NOW is the time when holly sprays
Light all the barren, brooding ways,
And every bell, it sounds noel,
A psalm in the Master's praise.

Now is the time when icicles gleam
Like beryl in the morning beam,
And every bell, it sounds noel,
And makes the Master's praise its theme.

Now is the time when mistletoe
Is glossy in the noonday glow,
And every bell, it sounds noel,
To praise upon his name bestow.

Now is the time ofingle mirth,
The blessed day of Christ—his birth,
And every bell, it sounds noel,
To ring his praise throughout the earth.

UNIFORM

Two things may prevent your motor from developing its maximum power at all times—

Using a gasoline that is not always uniform, and Frequent changes from one gasoline to another.

You cannot keep your carburetor properly adjusted if you do either of these things. Standardize on your gasoline. Fill your tank with Red Crown wherever you are. Wherever you get it you'll find it the same—powerful, speedy, quick-starting and crowded with mileage.

At our Service Stations and all good garages. Look for the Red Crown Sign.

Put Polarine in your crankcase. It's the perfect winter lubricant.

Preferred a Democrat.

A Bartholomew county drafted man who failed to appear for examination when called, was arrested and taken before the draft board, says the Indianapolis News. He said he didn't wish to go to war and wished to be exempted. A member of the board told him he could go before a notary public and have his blank filled out. "I don't want to go before a notary public," he replied. "I'd rather go before a Democrat."

"Now, Willie, see the nice cake I have made for your birthday."
"Can I eat it all myself?"
"Why, of course not. You would be sick."
"That's just the way with you, mamma. Whenever you do give me any pleasure, you always tie a string to it."
