"The Bird of Paradise." It is a fine question whether autosuggestion or prenatal influence causes Luana, the heroine of "The Bird of Paradise," to jump into the crater of Kilauea in order to appease the wrath of the Goddess Pele.

Persona familiar with the old native customs of the Hawaiian Islands, say that It is both auto-suggestion and prenatal influence due to the practice of Kahunaism, which even the missionaries have not been able to wholly stamp out

The Kahuna is the Witch Doctor and the natives firmly believe in his power to make the prayer of death cause the demise of the person against whom his displeasure is centered.

Any person who has an enemy, goes to the Kahuna and brings a bit of the enemy's hair, a nail, spittle or blood and pays to have the prayer of death pronounced. It is a well authenticated fact that the victim loses all power of resistance and, in a comparatively short time, wastes away and dies.

When Luana resists the commands of the priest to become a Goddess of Pele and decides to accompany her American husband to the United States, Dikeman, deceased, in the County, he intones the prayer of death over Court of Lincoln County, Nebraska. She is informed of this by her friends, together with the fact that the volcano is in eruption, a sure sign of the wrath of the Goddess: Luana reallizes that, according to her religious belief, if she offers herself as a human

TWO VIEWS OF THE LATE GERMAN PEACE MOVE.

London.-The allies see in the latest German peace move a shrewd piece of strategy, a play to make Russia believe that the allies are only stumbling block for termination of the war, that they are trying to block peace movements and that they oppose the Ruscan general peace plans. The allies remain united in the view that the future security of a world peace is absolutely essential. The military experts and diplomate are in one accord that there is no such assurance in the terms which Prussianism has promul.

Washington - The peace move made by Germany lacks the essential elements that will insure a permanent "namely the elimination of Hohenzollerism from the face of the The "no annexation" clause would also bar plans of the allies that have to be carried out to keep militarism confined forever after. The peace ry is regarded as a catch phrase, for benefit of the Russians and with no other real objective. Important questions, such as the restoration of Belgium and other devasted countries, what disposition is to be made of Alsace-Lorraine, are entirely ignored.

And now by gum if I'm going to make good I'll make up some loaves as I know she
