

Weak Eyes

This is a common name for a condition brought on by eye strain. Reading or close work makes the eyes grow very tired and watery.

Properly fitted glasses nearly always are the only thing necessary. An examination of the eyes by Clinton will determine what is needed. If glasses are enough, you will be provided with exactly the lenses you should have.

If your eyes need medical treatment, we will advise you to see an oculist.

In talking with farmers from several sections of the county Saturday we learned that the dry weather did not damage wheat to any extent—that a number of farmers cried before they were hurt. Here and there in fields will be found a spot that was fired, but as a whole the wheat is in good condition, and the rain last week helped it along amazingly.

"THE SPLENDID SINNER" RECALLS CAVELL CASE.

Edith Cavell's brutal execution by the Germans at the beginning of the war shocked and angered the whole world. The story of the heroic English nurse and her perfunctory trial has been printed in every language, even subjects of the Central Powers deploring the injustice of Von Bissing's order which sent Miss Cavell to her death. Monuments and on the Continent and in the little village of Beausoleil, just above Monte Carlo on Mont Argel, a street bears her name "Rue Miss Cavell."

Mary Garden, who knows her war history as few of us do, was responsible for this honor being paid the memory of the nurse. A frequent visitor to Monaco, she knows the surrounding country well and had no difficulty in persuading the mayor of Beausoleil to put the matter before the local council.

Now Miss Garden has further opportunity to immortalize the memory of Edith Cavell, and in motion pictures. It happens in "The Splendid Sinner," announced as the attraction at the Keith theatre, beginning Wednesday. In this Goldwyn production Miss Garden, as a Red Cross nurse finds herself journeying in German intrigue and espionage after the manner made famous in the Cavell case. She attempts to aid a wounded soldier and is detected by German officers, brought before the council and given a trial equally as unfair as Miss Cavell's. The conclusion of the drama is poignant in the extreme and Miss Garden's really notable histrionic ability is given adequate expression.
