

EVELYN NESBIT in
"The Woman Who Gave"
 An intense and powerful photoplay of a woman's struggles to keep her life clean for the sake of her son.
Keith Theatre January 15 and 16,
 Wednesday and Thursday

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Midred Norris returned to Omaha Sunday after a visit with relatives in town.

If you want to see "Johanna Ernests," with Mary Pickford tonight will be your last chance. Don't forget at The Keith.

Vincent Roddy who is stationed at the Mare Island navy yard, arrived home Sunday on a furlough that will extend to February 7th.

The narrow room between the Sun theatre and the Nyal drug store has been leased by Mrs. Albert Abel who will conduct a coffee house.

John Monroe left yesterday for Omaha where he will take treatment for stomach trouble which has made life somewhat of a burden to him for some time past.

For rent, three unfurnished rooms for light house keeping. Nice location. Phone Red 670.

The H. & M. Shoe Store in Omaha, of which our former resident Harry Fleishman is the head, opened for business yesterday. Evidently the 13th has no terror for Harry.

The Y. P. M. S. of the Lutheran church will meet Friday evening at 7:30 at the home of Margaret Fredrickson. Members and friends are urged to be present.

A social will be given for the young people of the Christian bible school in the basement of the Christian church Friday evening, January 17th, at 8 o'clock. An invitation is extended to the soldier boys who are not attending bible school elsewhere.

The fines in the county court for the last six months of last year amounted to $1,121, which is evidence that the ways of the transgressor is costly. The excess fees for the half year were about two thousand dollars which were turned over to the county treasurer by Judge Woodherst. The office is somewhat of a money maker for the county.

The 20th Century Club met with Mrs. M. E. Scott on Tuesday afternoon, January 7th, Mrs. Pielsticker assisting the hostess. As is the custom, dainty refreshments were served at 3:30 and the program followed immediately. Mrs. Cramer gave a splendid talk on Womans Part in the Reconstruction Work, which was followed by a general discussion. In the business meeting, the club decided to follow up the work of the Christmas time and voted to ask the public for contributions of clothing, bedding and money for the needy of our city. A committee was appointed with Mrs. Ralph Smith chairman who will be at the Library building every Friday afternoon from two to six to receive and distribute such articles. There are a number of cases needing help and our people are sure to respond as they always do when the call for help comes. The names of those in need are asked to be reported to Mrs. Ralph Smith. Please bear this in mind and bring your clothing to the basement of the library building on next Friday afternoon, Jan. 17th, and following Fridays until further notified.

The club will meet Tuesday afternoon, January 21st, with Mrs. Charles Edwards, Mrs. W. H. McDonald assisting. A discussion, Responsibility of Women as Voters will be led by Mrs. York Hinman. The literary department will have charge of the program.

Public Auction.

I will sell at public auction across from the postoffice on Saturday, Jan. 18th, a lot of good household goods, a nineteen hundred and seventeen model Maxwell car in good shape, and a lot of wrenches and other articles too numerous to mention. Sale to commence at 2:30. F. C. PIELSTICKER, F. M. JOHANSEN, Clerk

Lecture on the Bible.

The second of a series of lectures on the bible and the fundamentals of the christian faith will be given by Rev. Koch Thursday evening at the Episcopal church at eight o'clock. Although of a similar nature, these lectures differ from those given last year. Everyone is welcome.

The Methodist aid society will meet next Thursday afternoon in the church parlor. As there are matters of importance to come before the meeting a large attendance is expected. Commencing at 5:30 in the evening the ladies aid will serve one of their usual splendid suppers to the public, the menu consisting of hot veal loaf, mashed potatoes, green string beans, relishes, jelly, home made bread and pies.

For quick action and satisfactory sale list your land with Theolecks. Showing with the Chaplin picture "Shoulder Arms" at the Keith Friday night will be Peggy Hyland in Bonnie Annie Laurie and Saturday night Wallace Reid in Less Than Kin. Owing to the length of the shows the pictures will be started promptly at 7:15 Friday and Saturday nights. Please bear this in mind and come as early as possible.

"The Great Adventure."

Have you, gentle reader, if you are a girl, ever had ambitions for a career on the stage? Have you ever laid awake nights making plans as to how you are going to get your chance and felt that if you ever did get it you would certainly "make good" and become a star?

Well, Bessie Love, the Pathe star, plays a girl with such ambitions in the first of her Pathe plays, "The Great Adventure" which will be at the Sun Theatre Thursday. And in this charming photoplay you will see how one young girl found her chance and "stole away the show" from those who had much more experience.

"The Great Adventure" takes you behind the scenes and tells in delightful fashion a romance such as once in a while happens in this work-a-day world. Miss Love is most loveable in a role which fits her like a glove.

COMMON CLAY

"The same old Warren Boyd!"

"Hasn't changed one particle!"

Two married sisters of the Elston family stood peering from behind a window curtain at Warren Boyd. He had just arrived, the guest of their brother Harley. It had been over six years since they had been playmates, great changes had transpired since then, but the worldly wise wedded sisters speculatively viewed the young man whom they believed only one influence would ever bring to Walden, and that was Naida. She had been his bright star of hope in boyhood days; he had managed to meet her at least once or twice during a year. "A sneaking fondness I can't get rid of for a divinity," he told Harley sighfully, who declared sturdily that Naida was true blue and was waiting for him to grow up, and no one else.

And now he had shown up, not one particle changed, and as calculating, shrewd witted Mrs. May Tolson turned over this young man in her mind as a possible desirable party for Naida, her admiration of any fine points Warren might have faded away.

"He won't do," she told herself, "He is just the same big overgrown country boy, awkward, self conscious, clumsy. Why, he lets the little ones play with him as if he was some great good natured dog."

From another window Naida peered also, but the sweet serenity of her face was almost angelic as she read in this great accommodating guest an innate love for children, and saw him enter heart and soul into their innocent pleasures. She had not seen him for a year. Yes, he was the same. Some of the crude lines of face and form had toned down, but there was not a trace of artifice, not the remotest attempt to get other than what he was. The little ones piled upon him as a good natured big brother. He amazed and delighted them with the various marvelous little parcels of sweetmeats he produced from strange hidden pockets, and when Mrs. Tolson and Mrs. Marcy sailed down into the garden in all their royal array of dignity and purpose in view, he brushed back his hair as would some embarrassed school boy and sat uneasily on the chair between them, feeling somehow that he was in the presence of unfriendly censors, yet knew not why.

Naida stole a last distant glance at him. She fancied she liked a certain forced repose and guardedness that came into his face as he confronted her officious sisters.

"We learn great news, Mr. Boyd," spoke Mrs. Tolson sweetly. "Your uncle has made permanent provision for your cousin and yourself, we understand?"

"The grand old trump!" cried Warren. "He's cared for us orphans, he's educated us and now he's started us out in life—a man to love, truly."

"Has he—has he quite settled his business affairs?" delicately Mrs. Marcy inquired.

"Oh, quite," answered Warren bluntly. "You see, there's the town property and the bank. That was the bulk. He wanted to divide it between Arthur and I. 'No sir!' I said 'Arthur is a cripple, an invalid. He needs a sure income. Give him the sure end of the estate so he'll have no worry.' Dear, brave Arthur! gentle as a girl, patient amid all his great sufferings."

"Why—why—," overflowed the astounded and indignant Mrs. Tolson, "what was left for you?"

"The old brick works down the river. You see, that was a losing investment for Uncle Carr, who never understood the business, and neglected it. I went down there last week and looked it over. I saw all those neat little cottages gone to neglect and ruin. I saw the workmen half employed, half paid, half hearted. 'Oh, Uncle!' I said, 'give me these men, these women, these children. Give me Mud Creek, sunk in the slovenliness of indifference, give me this business to raise to something worth while, these souls to place upon the higher ground of a new existence.' Thank God! he did it, and I have found my life work."

Naida Elston had come down into the garden. Twenty feet away, she stood fairly entranced by the sudden inspiration that had flashed from the soul of a man who to all had been a mere lump of common clay. Her soul took fire in turn. His face was irradiated, he was at once transformed.

"The blind, perverted idiot!" muttered Mrs. Tolson, under her breath. "When he could have grabbed ease, luxury, wealth!" echoed Mrs. Marcy. "Oh, indeed; this plover, this being who whittled away his chances would not do for Naida at all!"

"I heard you—it is splendid!" cried Naida, with beaming, overflowing eyes, an hour later. "Yes, yes, dear Warren, say it again," she pleaded, and she clung to his outstretched hands. "You are to go among those poor, forgotten people, a little brother of the poor. You are to have money, absolute control, a free hand. And you come to ask me—"

"If you could suggest some one willing to help me shoulder the burden, and lead the bent light out from the shadow into the glorious sunlight of a new and beautiful life."

"A little sister of the poor, just as you are the friend, the brother, the guide and the leader? Oh, Warren!" and how that dear, sweet face yearned into his rapt, eager own—"make me worthy of this, the proudest duty and privilege that ever fell to the lot of woman!"

Paul Tobin, who had been transacting business in Denver since his discharge from service, returned to town yesterday and will resume his management of the interests of the Harrington Mercantile Co. in this section.

Wanted—Work night and mornings and Saturdays by high school boy. Phone Black 858.

Carl Brodbeck, who had been stationed at Camp Meigs, near Washington, D. C., in the commissary department, arrived home Sunday, having received his discharge.

WE ARE OFFERING
45 Head of Big Type Poland-China
BROOD SOWS
 Consisting of 10 Tried Sows, 14 Fall Gilts and 18 Spring Gilts:
 Sale to be held in the Besack Barn, 2 Blocks south of the U. P. depot in North Platte on Tuesday, January 21st, 1919, beginning at one o'clock p. m.
 The Tried Sows are mostly sired by Orphan Bob 90173 by the Big Orphan 63348, some of them sired by Jumbo Chief 80512 by Monks Double Chief 77098. The Fall Gilts are sired by Star Victor 84409 by Nebraska Ben Amazon 74110. The Spring Gilts are sired by Extra Wonder 88380, by Extra Long 69044. I have bought my breeding stock out of such herds as J. E. Smetlan, Schuyler; Phil Dawson, Endicott; and La Vern A. Ball, Albion. They are bred to Fancy Big Bone by Giant Big Bone Prospect, others are bred by Long Boy by Nebraska Boy. Others are bred to Timms Prospect owned by La Vern A. Ball. All of our hogs will be catalogued. Bids may be mailed to Jessie Johnson Lincoln, or A. W. Thompson, York, Nebr., in our care.
General Remarks:
 Will say that we are offering as good a bunch of Brood Sows as a man will look at. Some of our tried sows will come into the ring weighing 600 pounds or better. We are offering some exceptional good Fall Gilts that will go out, make good, bred right and good in every way. Our Spring Gilts coming just fine, they are late farrow but in good thrifty condition, growing like weeds. Our hogs are not loaded down with flesh, just in a pink growing condition. All of our hogs are cholera immune, double treatment.

Don't Dry Dishes - Fan 'em

Why wait until next summer before buying that Electric Fan! It's useful, you know, the year 'round. Besides—

By next summer the supply of fans may be as limited as German victories. You can get excellent service from your Electric Fan even in zero weather.

"How?" Just as many other shrewd housewives do. For instance—

Drying dishes, clothes, fruit. Driving heat out of the kitchen into less warm rooms and halls. Directing it against the radiator and distributing heat evenly throughout the room.

Come in and let's talk it over. It's often wise to buy fans in the early fall when they are to be had.

Buy beforehand! Buy now!

N. B.—You say you have a fan. Well—is it usable—workable! Better have is overhauled for Winter's war work. We do it—quickly—economically.
