Have you a little liquor in your home in anticipation of the long drouth which the national prohibition amendment prescribes for the near future? If so look out for the anti-saloon league, which has designs on your cellar, or well-stocked dark closet, whatever the case may be. Not content with having won the great prohibition victory thru the ratification of the prohibition constitutional amendment, the anti-saloon league now proposes to attack the "stocks on hand" of private individuals, and plans a prohibitive tax and a search and seizure law to bring to the full light of day the liquors that have found their way into the homes of the country.

The Greatest Little Town.
Ralph W. Graham, of La Grange, Ill., a son of Geo. E. Graham a former North Platte business man, sends us a Chicago Tribune and calls our attention to the fact that in the "A Line O' Type or Two" column of that paper appeared a clipping from The Tribune relative to Tom Healey falling in Omaha while helping a stout lady across an icy street. In his letter Ralph says: "I have always maintained that North Platte is the greatest little town in God's country and to gain recognition in Chicago's greatest newspaper serves only to substantiate my statement, even if it is at the expense of Tom Healey. It might hasten Mr. Healey's recovery to know that B. L. T.'s Lin-O-Type is the most widely read and absorbed column of any Chicago newspaper. Extend my sympathies or congratulations, whichever the exigencies of the occasion require, to Mr. Healey."

Forty-nine is the number of residence lots yet left in the Trustee's and Riverdale Additions. A few years ago these additions were placed upon the market. One hundred and ninety-two residence lots were laid out and improved with sidewalks, sewer, graded streets, water and gas mains. The gradual growth of the city eastward has absorbed all but forty-nine of these lots. A large portion of the lots sold have been improved with homes and many of North Platte's best and most modern homes are located in this residence district. The owners figure that the demand of the present season will just about close out the remaining lots of these additions. In order to assist buyers, the owners are offering to accept Liberty Bonds at full value, the same as cash in full or partial payment of any of the lots shown in the advertisement with the map on the first page of this issue. The lots are for sale by one of the owners, Attorney Wm. E. Shuman, of this city.
