

Peering Over One's Glasses

It is effective on the stage for the character representing old age. But it is ridiculous in real life.

Why wear glasses that give you only half the service they should?

Let Clinton fit you with modern bi-focals, which give far and near vision through a single lens that in appearance is a one-range glass.

Our bi-focals will improve your vision, be very comfortable, and keep your age a secret.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS CONCERNING DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

Q—Who makes Dodge Brothers Motor Cars?

A—The firm is a close corporation, consisting of the two brothers, John F. and Horace E. Dodge.

Q—How long have Dodge Brothers been in the automobile business?

A—Over 15 years, during 11 of which they built every steel part for Ford, and gears for many other makers—but for the last 4 years they have been producing the car which bears their name.

Q—How about the stability of the makers of this car,

A—With large resources, ample experience and the world's second largest automobile factory, the future of the business can be judged by the past, as they have grown in four years from nothing to second place in the industry.

Q—How long have they built the present model of their car?

A—Four years ago this month, the first Dodge Brothers car was shown in North Platte and the same model is being sold today, except for various improvements which have been made from time to time. As "Motor Age" said two years ago, "No car has ever entered its third year with so few changes or need of changes."

Q—What is the capacity of the Dodge plant?

A—Over 600 cars a day, or around 200,000 cars a year.

Q—Who is the largest owner of Dodge Brothers cars?

A—The United States Government. Over a year ago they standardized on Dodge equipment for passenger cars and light trucks and now use thousands of them in most every branch of military service.

Q—Are there other large owners of Dodge fleets?

A—A great number of the country's largest corporations have standardized on Dodge equipment, for they buy their miles where they can buy them cheapest and first cost is but a minor consideration. Some recent western buyers are M. E. Smith of Omaha (16), Wheeler & Motter of St. Joe (22), and Central Coal and Coke Co., of Kansas City (6), and Standard Oil Co. of Nebraska.

Q—What points of merit are most often spoken of by owners of these cars?

- A—(1) Economy of both gas and oil and freedom of repair expense.
- (2)—Ability to get service and repair parts at fair and reasonable prices everywhere the car is sold—(which is country wide).
- (3) The wonderful and almost everlasting body finish.
- (4) Ease of riding and control.
- (5) Their speed—which delights some of the younger generation.
- (6) The power to pull out of the impossible places.
- (7) Their known standard value and remarkable used car value.

Q—What are the outstanding characteristics of these cars?

A—Medium weight, medium priced car, built with all the care of expert workmen, and with a fine regard for the selection of the best in materials and equipment—in fact built up to the standard of only a few of the extremely high priced cars.

Q—What is the price of Dodge Brothers Cars?

A—The touring, roadster and business car models all sell for $1200. The Sedan and Coupe convertible cars at $1800, delivered at North Platte, freight and war tax included. Prices are fixed to July 1, 1919.

Q—When can I obtain delivery on a Dodge Brothers car?

A—A reasonably prompt delivery can now be made on most of the models, but deliveries are made in rotation on signed orders and there is a present shortage of Dodge Brothers cars all over the country and spring will accentuate this situation. Today would not be a day too early to file your order specifying date of delivery desired.

P. S.—Sedans and Roadster models are quite far behind and early orders very necessary on these.
