Put Character into Your Work.
Those who reach the highest and best in any sphere of life must seek it. Whatever the work they have to perform, they must put earnestness and energy into it. Character counts, and the individual who achieves the highest must put personality in his efforts.

When asked to mention one thing above all others that had contributed to his success, a leading merchant said:

"Whether working for myself or for others, I always took an interest in my work, and tried to put part of myself into it."—Girl's Companion.

What Every Boy Should Do Every Day

Studying for the Screen.

"I heard from Umson last week."
"What is he doing?"
"Attending some kind of a school in New York."
"Getting on all right?"
"Broke an arm last week, he told me."
"Whee!"
"And the week before that he sprained an ankle."
"Well."
"One day he nearly lost an eye."
"I never did believe in too much school athletics."
"This is different."
"In what way?"
"I asked Umson what he meant by that kind of conduct, and he said if he holds out long enough he is going to be a moving-picture actor."
