MUSICAL COMEDY APRIL 22

"I'm So Happy," a rollicking musical farce comedy in which Frederick V. Bowers is starring this season will be at the Keith theatre Tuesday, April 22. Mr. Bowers' new vehicle has much to whet your interest as it is a farce comedy with music. The action is, said to be the fastest vehicle on the stage today, with pretty touches of sentiment and a lively strain of humor. Many laughs are tucked away in the brisk dialogue and the audience have no difficulty in finding them. Victor Gabery is responsible for the book and has used as theme "A Harmless Fib." It is astounding how this little white fib grows to be a whopping big lie with the idea in mind, if you tell one, you will have to tell more and the moral ever evident, don't tell the first one and the many tight places it gets Arthur Fairfax. Mr. Bowers, only to have him tell another one to get out of the preceding one and before the curtain is up five minutes, he has told so many he don't even remember the truth, but in all sincerity he lies with grace and ease. The musical end of the comedy is a big feature of the entertainment as the company consists of some of the cleverest musical comedy stars on the stage today, prominently of these might be mentioned Alma Youlin, Dolly Castles, Irma Bertrand, Mary Killoyne, Edward Sedan, William Devens, Harry Oakley and Olivette Rivers.

Mrs. J. E. Jeffries left Monday for Oklahoma, having been called there by the death of her sister, Mrs. E. E. Tomiska.
