

SIGNING OF THE PEACE TREATY AT VERSAILLES

This photograph, brought to the United States by the British dirigible R-34, shows the historic scene in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles when the peace treaty was signed. President Wilson, indicated by arrow, is shown affixing his signature to the document.

OPENING OF THE PERSHING STADIUM IN FRANCE

ABYSSINIA SENDS MISSION TO WASHINGTON

A mission from Abyssinia, one of the most remote countries of the world, is in Washington to offer congratulations to the United States on its successful role in the world war. In picturesque native costumes they have attracted great attention in the capital. From left to right they are: Ato Sinkae (ato meaning a gentleman of high station), Ato Herouy, Kantiba (mayor) Gabreu, Dedjazmatch Nado, head of the mission and a duke of the royal Abyssinian family, and Capt. Paul R. Morrissey, the United States officer detailed to attend the mission.

GREAT CROWD GREETS BRITISH DIRIGIBLE R-34

The photograph shows but a portion of the enormous crowd that turned out to see the R-34, the huge British airship, on its arrival at Mineola, L. I. The R-34 made the trip from England in 108 hours.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS LEARN FARMING

Wounded soldiers, convalescing at base hospital No. 1, Gun Hill Road, N. Y., are being given instruction in farming and agriculture. Not only does this help the men regain their strength and health, but provides them with a trade which they may follow after demobilization.

EX-PREMIER OF FINLAND

Oscar Tokol, ex-premier of Finland, who is now serving as a Finnish officer in the legion formed in north Russia to combat the bolsheviki. The Finns are now reported as offering stern resistance to the spreading bolshevistic factions.

A Skeptical Investor.

A woman with a few thousand dollars to invest asked a brokerage house to suggest a good investment with a minimum of risk. A partner in this house, on reading her request, proceeded to write his regular formula applicable to those who don't want any security which goes down. His recommendation was the 5 1/2 per cent bonds of the United Kingdom and Ireland.

A few days later he received a communication from the same woman and she requested that he send another investment suggestion.

"While I have faith in Great Britain," she wrote, "I am not so sure about Ireland."—Wall Street Journal.

Haunts Scene of Crimes.

In the olden days Devon and Cornwall were notorious for their wreckers, who tricked many a gallant vessel ashore on the rock-encircled coast by false lights. In many places the spectres of ships wrecked in this manner are said to reappear. At Priest cove in Cornwall, the ghost of a notorious wrecker who was wont to lure ships ashore by moving lights in lanterns, which he hung round the neck of a lame horse, is said to appear on stormy nights clinging to the fragment of a wreck, which is dashed violently on the rocks, eventually disappearing with the wrecker in a cloud of foam.

His Classification.

A man was writing somewhat impatiently in a post office while the young woman clerk discussed the gossip of the day with one of her admirers. His annoyance being evident in his countenance, she remarked, with Cockney sprightliness:

"Well, you needn't look at me as if I were poison."
"Not so much poison as a counter-irritant," he replied gravely.—London Tit-Bits.
