MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN THE OPTIC WRECK

The first collision on the Nebraska division in over a year occurred at Optic siding a short distance east of Kearney early Tuesday morning when the engine of train No. 4, with George Stearns of this city engineer plowed into the rear of a freight train standing on the main track. Engineer Stearns, owing to a dense fog, did not see the train in front until almost upon it. He reversed his engine, applied the emergency brake and both he and his fireman sticking to their posts, plowed through the caboose and three box cars loaded with boxed apples. As the engine crashed through the cars it toppled over on its side. Stearns and his fireman were able to extricate themselves from the wreckage and miraculously escaped any serious injury. None of the freight crew were injured, but when the wreckage of the burning caboose and box cars, which had caught fire, was being cleaned up the charred body of a man was found. There was nothing found to indicate his identity, but members of the freight crew stated that he was an operator who had gotten on the train west of Kearney and was dead-heading his way east. The collision delayed traffic about five hours.

An investigation is being made as to where the fault of the wreck lies.

Afterwards a wedding dinner was enjoyed by all the guests and relatives. After November 1st Mr. and Mrs. Mueller will be at home at 520 south Walnut street.

Bombing Plane Wrecked.

The big Martin bombing plane, which was expected to reach North Platte Tuesday, was wrecked that day near Yutan, thirty miles west of Omaha. Sailing along at an elevation of 1,500 feet Captain Francis and his three passengers failed, by reason of the dense fog, to see Omaha and attempted to make a landing near Yutan. In doing so the plane crashed into telephone wires and posts and fell to the ground a wreck. None of the occupants were injured. The bomber will be crated and shipped to Minneapolis and North Platte people will be deprived of seeing the big fellow.

Tuesday Lieut. Johnson, pilot of plane No. 106, became lost in the fog at Omaha and in attempting to land at a point other than the landing place, wrecked his machine and sustained serious injuries.
