MAY ALLISON NOTED AS BRILLIANT COMEDIENNE

Young Metro Star of "The Uplifters" Wins New Fame at the Sun Theatre

May Allison, the beautiful young Metro star of "The Uplifters" a comedy-drama adapted from the story of the same name by Wallace Irwin published in the Saturday Evening Post, has climbed the ladder of fame with unwonted rapidity.

Before entering upon her screen career she made her debut in the Henry W. Savage production of "Everywoman," first in the role of "Vanity" and later as "Beauty." Her rare dramatic talents were recognized and she was advanced to the important roles in "The Quaker Girl" with Iva Claire, and "Caprice" with De Wolf Hopper. Later she was starred in "Apartment 12-K."

Her first appearance on the screen was in "David Harum" with William H. Crane, but her greatest achievements have been with Metro, first as co-star with Harold Lockwood and later as a star in her own right. Among her most noted productions are "Peggy Does Her Darndest," "The Island of Intrigue," "Castles in the Air," "Almost Married," "In For Thirty Days," "Her Inspiration," "The Testing of Mildred Vane," "The Return of Mary," "A Successful Adventure" and "Social Hypocrites."

Miss Allison was born in Georgia and was educated in Cleveland and Philadelphia. At the Sun tonight.

Mrs. J. H. Day left this morning for Greeley, Col., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Cody Bond.

Our suit, coat and dress prices are open to comparison. Also style; see and be convinced. E. T. Tramp & Sons.
