A sweet, clear voice rang out above the rattle of dishes, and reached the ears of the tired, dusty driver of the big touring car on the hot road. With a quick, voluntary motion, and a glance in the direction of the cottage from which the sound came, the driver slowed down the car almost to a halt. then the singing ceased and another sound came to his hearing. It was that of a child crying and the sweet song was changed to a mother's coaxing, comforting monotone, while the rattle of dishes had stopped. What ever the driver had in mind when he slowed down the car could not be conceived, for with an Impatient move ment he released the brakes and sent the machine forward at high speed.

A few minutes later a pretty young girl in her early twenties appeared on the porch carrying in her arms a little child of about two years.

"Now, Janie, a big girl like you should not be crying. Why can't you be good like little brother?"

"Janie dood dirl, Muddie," protested the little one, and then catching sight of the gleaming car fast disappearing in the distance, she dimpled and gurgled, stretching her little dimpled arms toward It.

Suddenly she heard a soft purring sound in the distance. Yes, it was the motor returning. Half curiously she watched it, unconsciously smoothing the pretty gingham dress she wore, until suddenly she realized that it was coming no nearer. "What can be the trouble?" she wondered. For trouble it surely must be, for there was no other house within walking distance of the car but this one. She saw a figure in the distance descend from the car and begin walking slowly towards the house, without even a backward glance toward the car.

"Water or gasoline?" was her thought.

Slowly she went forward and stood framed in the doorway. The least she expected was a surprised glance from the man she stood facing, but to her surprise she was addressed in a tone of studied politeness, and met a look as stony and unrecognizing as the one she felt on her own face.

"Please may I have a bucket of water for my engine?" he inquired. "Certainly, sir; I'll get it for you." she returned in the same polite, casual tone as his own.

"But-er-I. May I get it for you?" he asked. "It's liable to be heavy."

"Oh, no, thank you. I am perfectly able to carry it." "Walt just a moment," she said, in a kinder tone. "Til get you a drink." As she returned with the water, her face flushed from the exertion of pumping, she noticed that the man was staring moodily at the ground then with a quick motion he stared at her, and from her to the children with a queer expression on his face.

That Would Seem to Be the Verdict Simian is Comparatively Helpless in of Humanity on the Great Question of Pies.

THE PASSAGE DECEMBER AND

They were talking about pies and discussing which was the best, and, what we gathered from the cheerful controversy, all were the best.

The person who stood up for the good old apple pie was just as eloquent In his references to the peach or pumpkin pie. In fact, each person would hurry through the praise of one kind of pie in order to champion another. which convinced us that of all the varieties of food in this world the pie In the lilessedest.

Sometimes you will find a man who doesn't eat pie, but watch him. Pie is a remedy for many distempers. We one time cured a ferocious sick headache with a quarter of mince plo, and that, too, on the advice of a physician. One of the party never heard of a mulberry pie, and what a barren life she must have led. We are through with the cherry ple ers and with what joy it has filled the world! We come to the berry era, and first of all there is the huckleberry pie, which berry has rescued from sunshine and soil all the grace of the earth. If a man does not like a huckleberry ple, it is because the pie or himself has not been well made. The black raspberry pie stands away up on the snowy peaks of perfection and for picnic purposes it is unparalleled. When we eat raspberry pie in the woods we feel that the Dryads are feeding us from their Hly white hands.

There are other glorious pies, of course, but we must have room to say that the glory of a pie is in the grace and charm of the cook. The pastry depends upon her temper, and the pastry is three-fourths of a ple. If we were going to get married again, we would arrange a pastry-making contest, and the damsel that made the best pastry we would marry-if we Could .- Ohio State Journal.

UNABLE TO ANALYZE DRUG

Intoxicating Principles of Powerful Narcotic, "Cohoba," Remain a Mystery to Chemists.

When Columbus arrived at the island of Haiti he and his followers were interested to observe a curious practice of the natives, who were accustomed on ceremonial occasions to make use of a narcotic snuff productive of a sort of hypnotic state, with vision supposed to be supernatural. The tribal wizards, or priests, while under the influence of the drug, were accustomed to hold communication with unseen powers, and their mutterings were construed as prophecies and revelations of hidden things. The snuff was called "cohoba," and, in the form of a fine powder, was inhaled through a forked wooden tube. the forks being inserted in the nostrils and the lower end of the tube the Water, as Are Many of the Land Birds.

Have you ever noticed a gull dropping on the sea-how it spreads its wings high so that the feathers shall not be wetted? If a gull's wing feathers get wet it cannot rise until they dry, says a writer in London Tit-Bits. Throw a mouse into the water. It can swim a little, but as soon as its fur is souked down it goes, and drowns. So, too, in the case of a rab- Lincoln county, Nebraska. bit. As soon as its fur is wet it is done for. .

A mole can swim like anything, but a monkey is very helpless in the water, Almost all land birds drown very rap-Idly if unlucky enough to fall into the water. They strike out with their legs; move round and round in a circle, but cannot get off the water.

Lions and tigers are very good swimmers, and do not share the common cats' hatred for the water. But of all the cat tribe, the South American have been in the absolute, open, exjaguar is the finest performer in the clusive, continuous and adverse poswater. It seems often to plunge in for mere joy of a swim.

A rabbit, as we have said, drowns as soon as its fur is soaked through, yet curiously enough its near relative. the hare, swims quite well, and will often cross a river when hunted.

Bears are good swimmers, even those that usually live far from large sheets of water, and the common rat is no mean performer.

One of the best of animal swimmers is the horse. Horses have been known to swim a river nearly a mile wide simply to get back to their old stables. Deer, too, can all swim well. There are cases of caribon having swum across lakes ten miles wide when escaping from forest fires.

ALCOHOL GROWS ON TREES Liquid Declared to Be Plentiful in Blooms Which Flourish in Profusion in India.

Alcohol in these days has attention from governments in diverse ways, England has had a committee studying the possibilities of increasing the production of alcohol to be used in generating power.

The opportunities discussed by the committee are interesting. Of course, potatoes, artichokes and cereals came in for attention. But it seems there are less known sources of alcohol. For example, there is the flower of the mahun tree, which flourishes in Hyderabad and the central part of India. This flower, when sun dried, contains 6 per cent of its weight in fermentable sugar, and apparently is to be gathered by the ton. Then there are the fertile gases of the coke ovens. They are so rich in surprises to the everyday man that it is not very startling to learn they contain ethylene, which by synthetic proce war may be converted into ethyl alcohol.

Flinging out his hand impulsively, he said: "Maud, let us at least be friends, if only for the sake of these children here.'

With a surprised look at him, she ignored his hand, and stood us if stunned.

"Muddle, muddle," broke in little Janie, "Janie wanna wide."

At the sound of the little one's voice the light broke on the astonished girl.

"Oh, Fred, Fred," she cried, and then dropping into a chair she buried her face in her hands and her shoulders shook convulsively. With one leap over the low railing the young man reached her side.

"Maudle, it's my fauit, dear, that you came to this. Let us forget it. Fil always be your friend. Don't dear, don't feel so bad. I-I-"

"Oh." came from the girl, "It's so f-f-funny-"

It was now the man's turn to be astonished, for the face turned up to him was wet with tears-of laughter! "Well, what the deuce is up? I-I What is it, Maud?" he finished desperately. "Oh, Fred, I see it all now. Janie, come here, dear. Where is mother?" she neked.

"Mamma?" questioned the child, plainty. "Mamma? She gone way off.'

A light of understanding broke over the young man's face, and under his breath he murmured "Maudie," then "Muddle," and found so little difference that he joined in the laughter with a light heart.

But Maudie's face had again cloud ed, and a tone of restraint crept inte her voice as she said : "But, Fred, that don't explain your not writing me for so long. Tell me, please, why it was?"

With his two arms about her, Fred explained his long absence, due to sickness, then his return home, her disappearance, his long hunt for her, and his final conclusion of her faithlessness, which was strengthened by the sight of her with the little ones.

"But, Maud," he continued, "when I heard your vidce today, singing, I just had to see you, if only to make you see that no matter what had happened, I was still an old, true friend; but now, Maudie, now-

Some hours later Janie's mother and father found a strange car at their door and their two children playing to their hearts' content in the dirt, while from the house came the sound of preparations for the evening meal, and above the rattle of the dishes a clear, sweet, happy voice and a low, vibrant, Joyous voice singing content-buried in a little heap of the snuff. which was held on a tray of carved wood. Sometimes large snail shells were used for snuff boxes. The mimosa-like tree from which the snuff is obtained is plentiful along the banks of the Orincco and the Amazon. It grows in Haiti, Porto Rico and other Islands of the Antilles. The seeds yielded by its pods are dried, roasted and ground to powder, which is sometimes mixed with lime from calcined shall shell.

Only recently has this tree been identified by Dr. W. E. Sufford of the government plant bureau as the source of the snuff, the origin of which has hitherto been a puzzle. The chemical properties of the drug are still unknown and so its intoxicating principle remains a mystery, Frightful Experience.

"What was my most thrilling experience?" mused the ex-pilot. "Ah! I could never forget it. It was a bright starlight night, but the lurid flashes around us obscured all else as we sped through the air. The advancing enemy was hard upon us, while all around we heard the weird, savage music so terribly familiar, and the thud as of a thousand falling meteors. We dived, looped, corkscrewed till our senses were numbed. I felt a sharp pain in my right foot, a dull weight in my side-I was falling, fallingand knew no more till I found myself lying on the ground badly smashed some hours later."

"And that was really your record aerial engagement?"

"No," he replied; "It was my first experiment with the jazz."-Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Paying the War Cost.

Referring to the cost of the war, Secretary of War Baker told the finance committee of the senate and house that the total outgo in round numbers would be $30,000,000,000; but $9,000,000,000 of this was loans to our nilles. Nearly a third of the net cost has already been paid out of money raised by faxation. The other twothirds was obtained from the five Liberty loans. If we pay a billion a year, besides interest, we can clear said lands of certain clouds thereon off the war cost in about twenty-one and to quiet and confirm such title in years.

Big Contribution to War.

One of the most striking contributions of the United States to the war was the enormous quantity of smokeless powder high explosives produced says the Scientific American. From April 1, 1917, to November 11, 1918, we produced 622 million pounds of smoke less powder, which was almost exactly equal to the couldned output of Franci and Great Britain.

With the coal beds about to produce alcohol, and the trees of India fairly blossoming with it, the man with a motor car may quiet the fears aroused by the scientists' figures which show that we are in sight of the end of petroleum and gasoline.
