PLACE NAMES THAT PUZZLE

Europeans Said to Find It Hard to Master the Designations of the Various States.

Down on the wharves they tell a story of how two British sailors were rowing a skiff under the stern of the battleship Ohio as she lay in an English port.

"A ho, a hault, and a 10," said one of the linnies. "Wot a 'ell of a name for a ship!"

We made very merry over Russian and Polish names. When it came to the Balkans we were free to confess that we didn't know whether the Danubius was a river or a breakfast food. But it is now borne in upon us that our own place names may not mean much more to Europeans than some of theirs mean to us.

Half the names of our states are pure Choctaw to all but educated Europeans, and not much more to many of those. A celebrated violinist said he had long ago given up trying to comprehend American geography or Indian names, and simply bought his railroad ticket to any place his manager designated.

"You ought to translate them," he added plaintively. His host confessed: "We can't."—Boston Globe.

Small Consolation. Hubby—Look at Blinks retired from business, and I am still in harness. Wife—Yes, but Blinks isn't a mule.

A woman seldom means all the mean things she says.

Why.

The new high-school teacher thought that she was making a decided hit with the older boys because they gathered around her to talk at many of the intermissions. The principal, who had noticed this, commended her on her interest in the boys and then told the boys how they should appreciate her for this same interest.

"I guess you like to have her talk football with you," he smiled. "Oh, no," hastily corrected one of them. "She doesn't know any football. We talk it before her and then we like to stand near so we can hear all the foolish questions she asks the fellows about it."

For His Own Good. "What became of Niblick who used to be in the ribbons and laces?"

"We've transferred him to the hardware department," answered the manager. "He was getting too sentimental with some of our feminine patrons. If he's called to wait on a woman in the hardware department she'll probably be the kind who won't stand any foolishness."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Applied Knowledge. Our little boy asks so many questions and so many of them we are unable to answer, so we give him this answer: "That's just nature, son."

One day I asked him how he got his face so dirty, and he said: "That's just nature, mother."—Chicago Tribune.

And sometimes when a man's faults are buried with his bones, the latter have too much company.

POULTRY FACTS

GIVE GRIT TO AID DIGESTION

Hens Should Have Access at All Times to Supply of Material to Help Grind Feed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The hens should have access at all times to a supply of grit or stones of a size small enough to be swallowed readily. Grit is used by the hens to help in grinding in their gizzards the hard grains which they eat. A supply of ordinary gravel will answer the purpose of grit very well. Crushed oyster or clam shell also should be given to the hens and be kept before them at all times. If this is withheld the hens are likely to lack sufficient shell-forming material in their feed, with the result that they lay many soft-shelled or thin-shelled eggs. Grit or shell can be purchased in small quantities at any feed or poultry supply store.

Self-Feeders Are Handy for Holding Grit, Crushed Oyster Shell, Etc.

PECULIARITIES OF TURKEYS

Show the Least Intelligence of Any Farm Fowl When Young and the Most When Matured.

Some one said the turkey shows the least intelligence when small and the most intelligence after maturity of any fowl known. This is true of all the farm fowls. The goose and duck will often go some distance from the poultry range, make a nest, deposit their eggs, sit and hatch, if undisturbed, taking no notice as to whether being watched by human eyes or not. The turkey is very cautious. She will lead one, if she finds she is being watched, away from the nest or where she intends making it, often making a nest and sitting down cozily, until her watcher decides, or is deceived into thinking she is on the nest, but he will have to try it over again. After the watcher has gone away, she leaves her temporary nest for the true one deposits her egg and usually covers it deeply with leaves or other trash.

WINTER SHELTER FOR GEES

Fowls Are Very Hardy and Open Sheds Are Satisfactory for Cold Weather Season.

Geese do not need shelter except during cold winter weather, when open sheds may be provided. Goslings are not usually hatched until good pasture is available, and need additional feed only for a few weeks. The range of pasture used either for goslings or for geese should be large enough so that the grass will remain clean, or the stock should be moved frequently to fresh land. Coops, barrels, or some other dry shelter should be provided for the young goslings. Geese are very hardy and free from diseases and insect pests.

POULTRY NOTES

If you would avoid limberneck at least no dead carcasses or maggots on your farm.

It pays every farmer to have a poultry-wired yard for his fowls in which they may be enclosed when desirable.

Much of the year's success with the farm flock depends on the quality of the birds that are left after the fall culling.

Figure on enough poultry litter for the laying house so that the birds can have clean scratching material throughout the winter.

A little extra care of your hens and a bit of choice feed will pay in eggs many times. Don't be afraid of doing too much.

The hen needs exercise the same as a human being. You can't expect hens to have health and lay winter eggs when huddled up in a small space.

FOGGY?

If Bilious, Constipated or Headachy take "Cascarets."

Tomorrow the sun will shine for you. Everything will seem clear, rosy and bright. Your system is filled with liver and bowel poison which keeps your skin sallow, your stomach upset, your head foggy and aching. Your meals are turning into poison, gases and acids. You cannot feel right. Don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendid always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without griping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or nasty, harsh pills. They cost so little too—Cascarets work while you sleep.—Adv.

QUEER KIND OF OLD CODGER

Tybalt Totter in Fair Way to Be Read Out of the Aged Men's Protective Union.

"I have reached the age of eighty-three years," admitted old Tybalt Totter, "and yet I do not think that a man is only as old as he—ee—heel!—feels, and that all the c—only widows are after me, merely because they treat me with civility. I have never had much cause to complain of anybody's lack of respect for the aged—I find that the aged generally get all the respect their behavior entitles them to. And I have found that the average busy citizen is not deeply interested in the trivial happenings of 1854 and thereafter.

"As well as I can remember, the weather back yonder was usually just about the same as it is now. I cannot say that I am greatly surprised to find profiteering going on, for to the best of my recollection a considerable proportion of the people have hogged each other at every chance they got. But what is especially queer about me is that I do not make a practice of denouncing and raving at young people for cutting the same fool capers that I did when I was their age."—Kansas City Star.

"See Other Side."

He works in a downtown drug store. The other day an elderly woman perplexed him when she gave him a newspaper clipping and asked him: "If he had any of that. He read: 'Eight-button length chamousette gloves, $1.49.'"

"You must be in the wrong shop, madame," suggested Vic.

"This is a drug store, isn't it?" asked the woman.

"Yes," said Vic, "but we don't sell eight-button gloves."

Then the woman reached for the clipping, turned it over and on the other side was an advertisement for snake oil.—Detroit News.

The Probable Period.

"How much longer," growled a guest, "are those old codgers over there in the corner going to continue to wrangle?"

"About an hour, probably," replied the landlord of the Petunia tavern. "They are discussing the League of Nations, and they've only got just as far as arguing yet. They have to cuss and yell and call names before they get it settled for today and start off madder than wet hens."—Kansas City Star.

HE KNEW ONLY ONE METHOD

Italian Wanted to Be Incorporated and Went About Scheme in a Practical Way.

"Mister," an Italian of middle age addressed Lou Guernsey. "I want to be incorporated."

By questioning the Italian, Lou gained the information that his client was a man of odd jobs, mowing lawns, carrying coal, washing windows, etc.

"You see," explained the client, "I am going to have some advertising cards printed and I think it would give an influence if I say on them I am incorporated."

"But how," asked Guernsey, "do you expect to have yourself incorporated?"

"I have no knowledge," was the reply, "but if it costs, I will pay it!"—Los Angeles Times.
