The funeral of the late Mrs. Christina Cohagen was held from the family residence Friday afternoon. Mrs. W. H. Cramer reading the Christian Science service and Miss Hilbert rendering two solos. The attendance of friends of the family was very large, and the floral tributes in number and beauty have never been surpassed in North Platte.

Miss Ruth Knox, of Sutherland, visited with friends in town Saturday.

Mrs. Geo. Loan and daughter Miss Ruth came down from Denver Saturday to spend Christmas at the H. A. Brooks home.

This is your opportunity to get Xmas gifts at a big reduction at the Style Shop.

Dr. D. G. Hoxie, of Barney, S. D., and Mrs. W. E. Hoxie and daughter of Hampton, Iowa, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoxie for a day or two the latter part of last week while enroute to California.

A good clock for your wife's Xmas. Dixon, the jeweler, is showing a complete line.

Fine linen handkerchiefs with a neat colored border is the correct style now. Edwards-Reynolds Co. 96-4 Saturday was just such a day as we have a reason to expect in western Nebraska at this time of the year, bright and warm, and the streets were crowded with farmers who had been more or less snow-bound for a couple of weeks.

W. V. Hoagland went to Scotts Bluff yesterday where he will appear as attorney for the relatives of four men who were killed in an auto accident while crossing the Burlington track last December. The plaintiff in each case sues for fifty thousand dollars damages.

J. J. Harrigan, of Grand Island, is visiting with friends in town this week. Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Patterson and daughter Miss Edith left Sunday for Omaha where they will spend Christmas with their daughter Miss Ruth, before leaving via the southern route for California to spend the winter.

Sheriff Salisbury left Saturday night for Texas where he went to bring back a Mexican who had in his possession silk that is believed to have been stolen from a Sutherland store a couple of months ago. The silk was forwarded to the Sutherland merchant who positively identified it as part of $3,000 worth of goods taken from his store.

Bulls Weds French Girl.

John E. Bulls, a locomotive fireman of this city, was married at Lexington last Thursday to Miss Marie Charline Sowillart, of Bauvin, France. The marriage is the result of a courtship in France while Mr. Bulls was stationed there as a member of Company L, 134th U. S. Infantry. The bride, who is twenty years of age, was filled with misgivings as to whether she would ever see her American lover again when she bade him good-bye when he sailed for his home, fearing that when he arrived in the United States he would soon forget her. Not so, however, for six weeks ago Bulls sent for her to come and she lost no time in making preparations for her long journey from France to Lexington, and upon her arrival there was met by her sweetheart and the ceremony followed. Mr. Bulls and his war bride will make North Platte their home.

No More Diversion of Coal.

The Tribune announced last Friday that there was plenty of coal in town and that it was coming in a little faster than it was being applied for by users. The very same day that this was published came a notice to the fuel committee stating that no more diversion of coal would be made; that thereafter the coal dealers must hustle, in whatever way they can, the coal needed for North Platte.

Railroad Men in Congress.

North Platte railroad men may not know that there are three former railroad men holding seats in congress. They are Conductor William J. Burke who represents a Pennsylvania district, Engineer Wm. L. Carrs who is a congressman from Minnesota, and Fireman John B. Cooper, representative from an Ohio district. They say these three congressmen meet frequently and talk "railroading" with as much zest as do the boys who assemble in the North Platte cigar stores.

Eleventh Hour Suggestions.

JUDGE HOAGLAND WRITES FROM SUNNY FLORIDA

Dear Tribune: Since my letter to you from Jacksonville, Mrs. Hoagland and I have visited the quaint old city of St. Augustine, said to be the most ancient town in the United States. It is now a fashionable resort on a peninsula between Mantanza sound and the St. Sebastian river. It has many palatial hotels built in harmony with old Spanish architecture. The history of St. Augustine begins in 1512, when Ponce de Leon, a Spaniard in search of the fountain of youth, landed there and thought he had found the desire of his heart. After enjoying ourselves several hours there we sailed along in our Ford flyer over smooth asphalt roads to Daytona where the altitude is only nine feet above sea level. It is a city about the size of North Platte situated close to the Atlantic. Here are twelve miles of the broadest, hardest and smoothest beach in the world, upon which many of the world's records have been established in motor racing. Passing through Sanford in the interior of Florida, we noticed hundreds of acres of growing lettuce and the roads were covered with auto trucks laden with such vegetable. At Sanford we were informed that forty-eight railroad cars loaded with lettuce were shipped north ward from Sanford that day. Some lettuce, wasn't it? When we reached St. Cloud our car registered 2159 miles of road covered from North Platte and our rear wheels had not yet lost a pound of the North Platte air pumped in them before we started.

St. Cloud is an interesting town of about twenty-five hundred, a majority of which are northern veterans of the civil war. I wish Comrade Evans had been with me. I stirred the old boys up as best I could and John could have furnished splendid assistance. About the first fellow I met at St. Cloud was a man by the name of Alyea who knew me at once, as he was one of the jurors at North Platte in the Jeff Long murder trial many years ago, when Judge Grimes and I defended Long. Alyea is a prominent business man at St. Cloud and remembers many of the old settlers of Lincoln county. I met several old acquaintances in St. Cloud and had a pleasant time there for a week. Last Wednesday we motored to Arcadia, a distance of 116 miles, through some of the finest orange and grape fruit groves in the state, and over some of the best roads I ever traveled on. Polk county, of which Bartow is the county seat, has more than three hundred miles of 16 foot wide asphalt roads, over which it is delightful to travel, midst fine foliage, fragrant flowers and many kinds of yellow fruit. At Arcadia we had a delightful visit with my old friend and comrade, Rev. J. H. Derryberry and his wife, the father and mother of Sam Derryberry of Derryberry & Forbes of North Platte. Also with them is Miss Chappell, formerly of Logan county, Nebraska.

MRS. BACON NOW KNOWN AS "THE ALFALEA QUEEN."

Last Friday's State Journal contained the following relative to a former North Platte resident:

"Mrs. Jessie B. Bacon, owner of one of the largest alfalfa ranches in the country, near Gothenburg, Neb., was in Lincoln Thursday as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Nora Temple and her nephew Burward Temple, 3222 Bradford drive. Mrs. Bacon is known throughout the country as the "alfalfa queen of the world," and was in Lincoln in the interest of the woman's division of the national farmers' congress, of which she has been appointed president for this state. The woman's division will hold its congress in Omaha on January 6, 7, 8 in connection with the farmer's national congress. Mrs. Bacon spends her winters in New York at the Biltmore hotel and transacts her business at Gothenburg in the summer. She is an accomplished singer, has studied abroad and expects to do so again soon. Her holdings in Nebraska land have often amounted to 6,000 acres. She simply grows the produce on her ranch, has it stacked and then sells it to livestock owners who bring the stock to her ranch and herd there during the winter. From 300 acres of land last summer she cleared $20,000. Mrs. Bacon left Thursday afternoon for Gothenburg before returning to New York city. She will be in Omaha in January to attend the woman's congress of farmers when she hopes to organize the farmers' wives of Nebraska into an organization that will in some measure eliminate the drudgery and thankless work of these women."

Yours truly,
J. S. HOAGLAND.

A Christmas Suggestion

The gift to give is the GIFT ELECTRIC.

What woman is there who would not want something electrical for a gift at Christmas time? They all appreciate such presents.

There is a lighting fixture, a toaster a percolator, a grill, a washing machine, a vacuum sweeper and a host of other things here for her, and all bear our stamp of quality.
